WILL HITLER AGAIN STARTLE WORLD WITH NEW FOREIGN POLICY?

JAPANESE INDIGNATION IN SHANGHAI

STERN WARNING BY VICE-ADMIRAL

FLAGSHIP REMAINS IN PORT

Tientsin, Yesterday.
A fracas between Chinese and Japanese troops is reported to have occurred when 10 Japanese troops entered the new Chinese Park at Taku Fort and announced their intention of indulging in target practice. The Chinese soldiers, who happened to be in the park, objected, whereupon a slight skirmish occurred. There were no casualties.

Shanghai: Vigorous representations about the Kayau murder were made by Mr. Sugihara, the Acting Japanese Consul-General, to the Mayor, Mr. Wu Teh-chen, this morning, following a conference of the Japanese diplomatic, consular, military and naval officials.

Japanese residents are most indignant and the tension in Hong-kow is acute. However, the murder is at present being treated as a local incident, not calling for diplomatic action at Nanking.

“ANOTHER ‘STERN WARNING’”

Shanghai, later: Owing to the Kayau incident the Japanese flagship Izumo, which was scheduled to leave for Formosa this morning, cancelled her departure. Vice-Admiral Kondo, Commander of a Japanese naval landing party, issued a stern warning to the Chinese authorities, that he would take whatever steps were necessary to protect Japanese life and property if they were unable to do so. “or show a lack of good faith.” The anti-Japanese sentiment as discussed at a conference at Shanghai of the Japanese resident officers and military attaches throughout China, and the Kayau affair was reviewed.

C.E.C. SESSIONS OPENS

PROCEEDINGS “IN CAMERA”

PARTY AFFAIRS REVIEWED
AT LENGTH

Nanking, Yesterday.
The first regular session of the Central Executive Council was held at the party headquarters this morning, being attended by nearly all the delegates. The proceedings were in camera and nothing has hitherto been divulged as to what transpired.

Nanking, later: General Tang Chih-sui, former commander of the 19th Route Army, arrived this morning from Shanghai. He dissociated himself from the movement for the alleged restoration of the 19th Route Army against Nanking.

Dr. H. H. Kung is giving a luncheon to-morrow in honour of Generals Tang Chih-sui, Yu Han-mou, Tang Shao-yi and Mr. Wang Chung-hui.

PARTY POLITICS REVIEWED

Party political affairs were reviewed at length at the first general session of the C.E.C. this morning, presided over by Mr. Sun Fo. Altogether 166 delegates attended the meeting and approved the membership of the sub-committee of five examining the proposals. There was no session in the afternoon, and the sub-com-

REFORM OF CANTON CURRENCY

SPECIAL NANKING ENVOY
INTERVIEWED

ANXIETY FELT FOR SOUTH-WEST

Mr. H. O. Tong, Superintendent of the Chinese Maritime Customs in Shanghai, who was erroneously reported as having returned to Shanghai, is still in Hong Kong and yesterday gave an important interview to a number of local Chinese journalists and a representative of the Sunday Herald.

Mr. Tong, who came South as Special Envoy from Nanking, deputed by Dr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance in the Central Government, to enter into negotiations with the Canton Government with a view to the stabilisation and reform of the currency, confessed to the complete failure of the object of his visit. This, he said, was his second visit to Canton with the same object in view, his previous one having been made in May, when the Canton Government expressed its willingness, indeed its desire, to put the currency on a sound basis, with the help of Nanking.

RADIO STATIONS BARRED

ORDER BY VICEROY
OF ETHIOPIA

SEVERE FIGHTING WITH IRREGULARS REPORTED

“SUNDAY HERALD” SPECIAL

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.

The Viceroy of Abyssinia, Marshal Graziani, has issued orders forbidding the construction and operation of foreign-owned wireless stations throughout Abyssinia. The existing stations must cease operations and hand over their entire technical equipment to the Italian authorities.

The measure was taken, according to a semi-official Italian news agency “in view of the observation that responsible foreign quarters in Addis Ababa were using all the means at their disposal for sending out false and deliberately exaggerated reports.”

Paris: Severe fighting between Italian troops and Abyssinian irregulars took place near Harar, according to despatches received here from Djibouti, which add that the Abyssinians eventually withdrew, leaving numbers of dead and wounded on the battlefield, while the Italian losses are not known.

The despatches further state that the Abyssinian irregulars succeeded in interrupting the railway communications between Addis Ababa and Dire-dawa, and that the road leading from Addis Ababa to Dessie has been destroyed by the Abyssinians in various places.—Trans-Ocean Service.

LEGATIONS AFFECTED?

Addis Ababa: Marshal Graziani, the Viceroy of Abyssinia, has issued an order forbidding the use of private wireless transmitting sets in Abyssinia, which might affect the wireless transmitters of the various Legations, though so far their use has not been interrupted.

The United States Minister has informed the Government at Washington that he has been requested to close the wireless transmission of his Legation for 15 days, but is allowed to receive messages from Washington.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Legations are meeting to-morrow morning.

The next general session will be held at 8 p.m. on Monday, under the presidency of Mr. Chu Cheng, at which three minutes' silence will be observed in memory of Mr. Hu Han-min. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek will deliver an address and Mr. Chang Chun will submit a report on foreign affairs. The reports of the various Yuan will also be presented.—Reuter.

The Central Government was moved in this matter entirely by its anxiety to help the mass of the people in the South-west and to save them from disaster, he explained. Despite the expressed willingness of the Canton Government to accept the assistance of Nanking it had proved impossible to obtain any details of the true financial position of the Canton Treasury. It had, however, in the meantime come to the knowledge of the Central Government that the Canton authorities had collected a sum of about $30,000,000 worth of silver from the people of the South-west and had issued against this over $200,000,000 in currency notes.

MONETARY MISSION RETURNS

Shanghai, Yesterday.—The Chinese monetary mission to the United States, headed by Mr. K. P. Chen, returned to Shanghai this afternoon via Manila.—Reuter.

CANTON'S EVASION

On his second visit to Canton, whence he had just returned, he had been met with a refusal to negotiate any scheme for the stabilisation of the currency and it was, moreover, freely rumoured that an attempt was to be made to sell the $30,000,000 worth of silver to a foreign Power. If this should be carried out, he said, Canton would be completely ruined and starving inside of three months. He could see no way of preventing this sale unless the more patriotic element in the Canton Government should prove strong enough to prevent it.

NANKING STILL WILLING

Even now, if the Canton Government should express its willingness to negotiate, the Central Government, for the sake of the unfortunate people of the South-west, were prepared to carry out their original intention and to back their words with their money and bring the Canton dollar to a ratio of 1.45 to the taal and 1.55 to the Hong Kong dollar. But this, he said, could hardly be hoped for unless there were a complete change of Government in the South-west. Meanwhile there was the ever-present danger that the $30,000,000 worth of silver, supposed to be in the Canton Treasury, might be sold out of the country. He wanted, he said, the mass of the people in the South-west, whose welfare was the concern of the Central Government, to realise the true position of affairs.

ANTI-JAPANESE AGITATION

Asked his opinion of the present anti-Japanese agitation, Mr. Tong said that some of it was genuine, but some was decidedly

Hundreds of thousands of Paris workers were holding factories by means of “folded arms” or “stay in” strikes as the Popular Front Government, headed by Premier Leon Blum, took over the reins of state last month. Crowds are here shown in the courtyard of the Farman Aeroplane Works, which was one of the first to go on strike. The first demand of the workers was 45 hours pay for a 40-hour week. Even after the demands were met, strikers again started their “folded arms” tactics, being entirely out of the control of the labour leaders.

Ex-Servicemen To Make Pilgrimage Eighteen Countries To Take Part In Monster Rally

“SUNDAY HERALD” SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.
Upwards of 20,000 French ex-servicemen from all parts of the country will undertake a pilgrimage to the famous ossuary at Port Donauumont, near Verdun, where an immense demonstration of former war combatants from 18 countries, including Germany, will take place to-morrow in honour of all the soldiers who fell in the Great War in order to manifest the former war combatants' will for peace.

HEAT-WAVE CONTINUES

Huge Appropriations
For Relief

New York, Yesterday.
There are few signs of an abatement of the heat-wave in the United States. The death toll has reached the high total of 421.

The Government is faced with appropriations of $23,000,000 required to meet the food requirements in North and South Dakota and parts of Nebraska alone, while 95,000 families in Kansas will need assistance before the end of the winter.

50 DEAD IN ONTARIO

not genuine and was the work of men who were playing for their own hand; but, whatever the motive behind it, it was the worst thing that could have happened for China as a whole at the present time—and they had to regard China as a whole.

SMUGGLING

Regarding the question of smuggling Mr. Tong said they were doing their best to cope with it in the North, but their efforts were nullified in the South, where certain authorities were causing a loss to the Customs of at least $20,000,000 annually.

SIGNIFICANT VISIT TO ALPINE VILLA MOMENTOUS DECISIONS PENDING

EXPECTED DECLARATION ON EVE
OF LOCARNO AND OLYMPIAD

LONDON, YESTERDAY.
HERR HITLER'S FLOWER-FESTOONED VILLA AT BERCHTESGADEN HOLDS SECRETS WHICH ALL THE CHANCELLERIES AND SECRET SERVICE AGENTS IN EUROPE ARE SEEKING TO DISCOVER. IT IS BELIEVED THAT THE FUHRER HAS RETIRED TO BAVARIA IN ORDER TO PLAN A NEW PRONOUNCEMENT ON FOREIGN POLICY, WHICH MAY BE MADE ON THE EVE OF THE LOCARNO CONFERENCE AND THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

At the Olympic meeting the Nazis are making a very great effort to emphasise to the world the peace-loving and prosperous side of German life.

Germany feels that there are only two alternatives—either a conference of all five Locarno Powers aiming at the conclusion of the pact which Herr Hitler made the basis of his peace plan; or nothing. The Wilhelmstrasse is convinced that neither Britain nor Italy will agree to a one-sided solution, such as a firm alliance between Britain, Italy, France and Belgium against Germany, in the sense of the March Locarno protocol, which is favoured in some French circles. The German view is that France fears an united Italo-German front on questions relating to the reform of the League.

Another factor perplexing the Chancelleries is the future of Austro-German relations, but according to Vienna despatches no agreement has been reached.

It appears that the recent Austro-German talks have broken down owing to Herr Hitler's refusal to give definite recognition to Austrian independence, but will be resumed in the autumn.

German diplomacy has suffered a setback through Dr. Greiser's treachery at Geneva, which has made a bad impression on the world generally, including Germany's Polish friends. Within 24 hours the Ministry of Propaganda soft-pedalled the German press jubilation. Meanwhile Rome despatches indicate that Signor Mussolini favours intervention, which may have received the secret benediction of the Wilhelmstrasse.

MONTEUX DEADLOCK
The Anglo-Russian deadlock at the Montreux Conference is watched with keen interest. For the first time for many months Italy sympathises with British policy, as she objects to M. Litvinoff's scheme that the Russian fleet should be permitted an exit from the Black Sea in order to intervene in the Mediterranean, afterwards returning without anyone being permitted to pursue it.—Reuter.

CRICKET HELD UP BY RAIN

Eton v. Harrow Game
Abandoned

London, Yesterday.

Rain throughout the country is holding up the week-end cricket programme. Kent made 114 for 8 in their match against Surrey at Blackheath but after this play had to be stopped for the day. There was no play at all in the Lancashire v. Derby match at Manchester, and the same position obtained at Rushden, where Northants were due to meet Sussex.

MATCH ABANDONED

The annual Eton v. Harrow match at Lord's was abandoned. Harrow, who made 164 for 6 at the end of the first day (Thursday), totalled 180, Watson scoring 57 while MacIndoe took 3 for 50. Eton had only made 28 for 0 when play had to be stopped on account of rain, possibly at Berchtesgaden early next month.—Reuter.

GERMANY AND AUSTRIA

Improvement In Relations

IMPORTANT BROADCAST BY
CHANCELLOR SCHUSCHNIGG

Berlin, Yesterday.

Vienna messages forecast an important announcement to-night concerning the improvement in the Austro-German relations. Chancellor von Schuschnigg will broadcast at 9 p.m. from Vienna, where it is reliably stated that the announcement will, in part, take the form of a declaration that Germany is willing to respect Austrian independence.

The Austrian Legion in Germany will be dissolved and Nazi propaganda in Austria will be abandoned; the 1,000-mark tax on tourists will be abolished; permission will be extended to Austrians in Germany freely to pass across the frontier, and Austrian Nazis shall be admitted to the Austrian Patriotic Front, the only political party permitted in Austria.

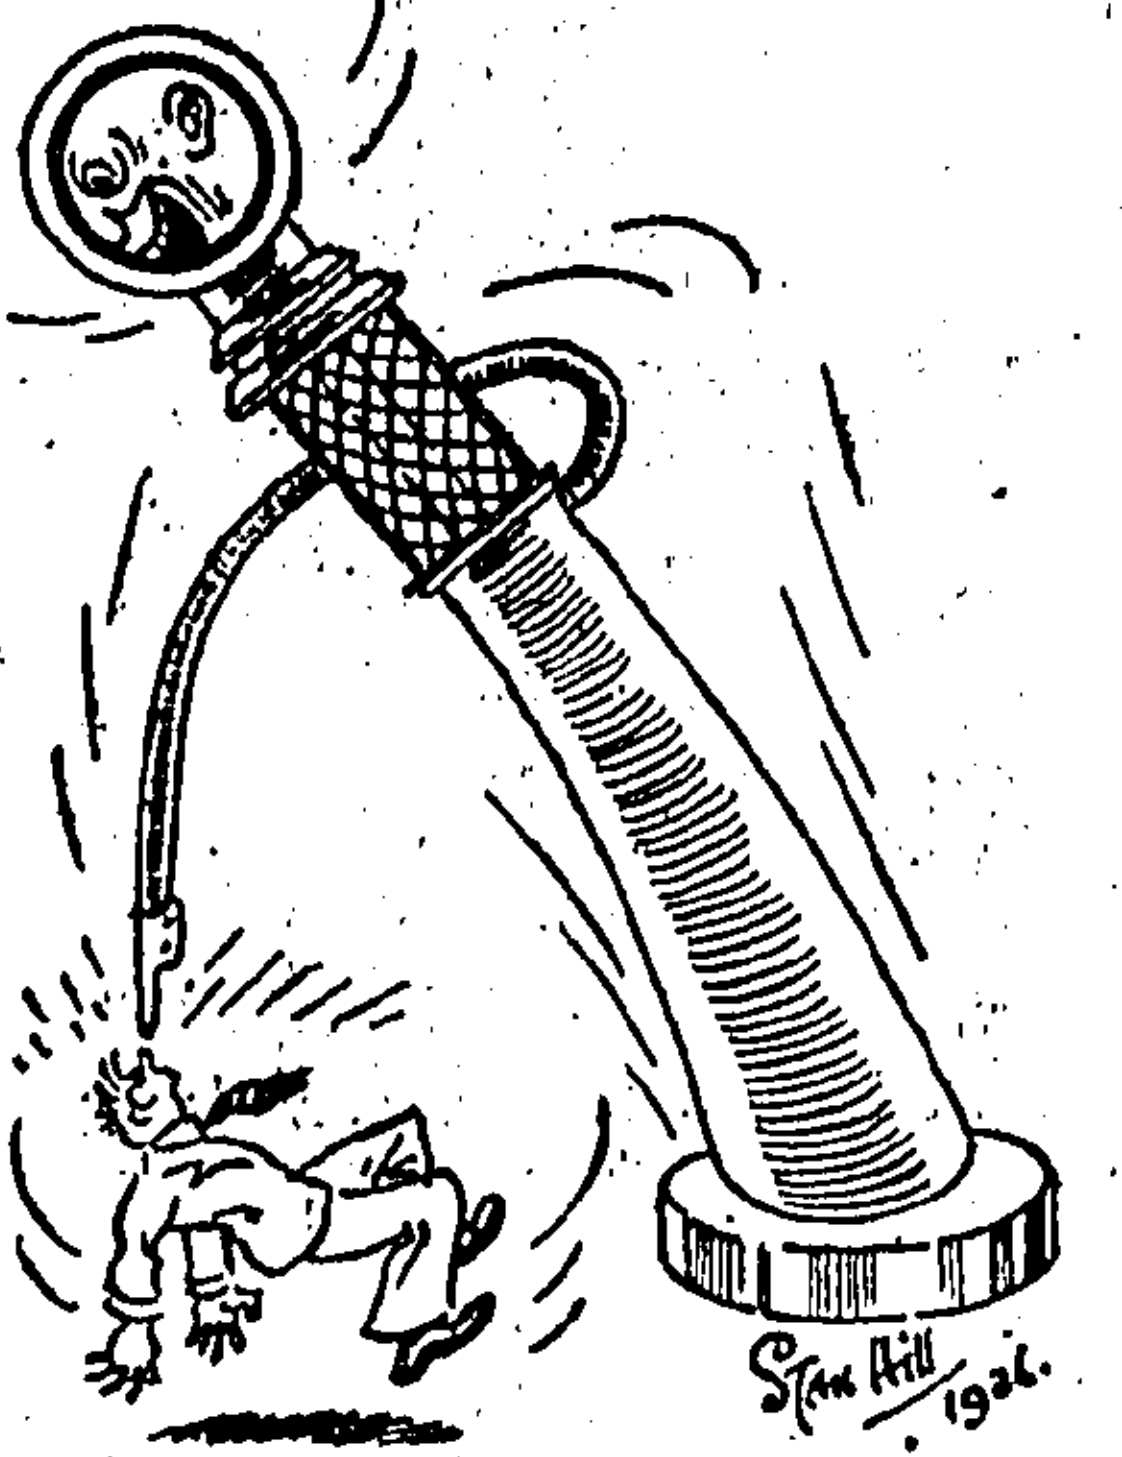

Dr. von Schuschnigg will probably not mention the Hapsburg restoration question as it is not imminent, but Germany in return has declared herself in principle not against the restoration.—Reuter.

SURPRISE EXPRESSED

Later: It is believed that Signor Mussolini is the driving power in the Austro-German reconciliation agreement being broadcasted from Vienna to Berlin to-night. The agreement is bound weightily to change the European situation. Its announcement is all the more surprising as earlier reports were pessimistic in character as regards the likelihood of reaching common views. Herr von Papen, the German Minister at Vienna, Baron von Neurath (German Foreign Minister) and Herr von Ribbentrop (German Ambassador at Large) participated in the final talks with Herr Hitler at Berchtesgaden.

It is reported that a personal meeting between Chancellor Hitler and Chancellor von Schuschnigg is being arranged on German territory had to be stopped on account of rain, possibly at Berchtesgaden early next month.—Reuter.

SATURDAY NIGHT

(By CARL SMYTHE)

DUSK rolled over Umatilla county—a blue dusk the like to which rolls over nowhere else in the world. For nature needs a very particular set of ingredients with which to produce this pleasant haze. She needs a late summer sun, a bit of fog from the foothills, a nicely balanced combination of wheat and road dust suspended over this undulating Oregon land.

It happens only in midsummer, but it has happened every midsummer for as long as the earliest settler can remember. That is why the foothills are called "The Blue Mountains" and it was why Buck Treviis took no particular notice of the blue haze as he rode in from the ranch with Hal Montgomery in the roustabout car.

A tourist would have decided that Buck was a cowpuncher minus his horse, for he wore a wide-brimmed Stetson and nondescript trousers tucked into leather boots. While the tourist's suspicion would have pleased Buck Treviis it would have been somewhat short of the truth. Buck was not a cowpuncher, but a header-puncher, which is something quite different and shows how things have changed in that part of Oregon where the little town of Creston lies.

A header-puncher stands astride a platform on the big power-harvester, his hands on a wheel much like the wheel of a ship. But this wheel guides, not a ship, but the shuttling blades which cut the wheat. It raises and lowers the blade arm, following the contour of the field, to make sure the wheat heads get into the machine for threshing.

That was Buck Treviis' job, and his costume had nothing to do with it. He could have punched in young bucko who, on the slightest provocation, might blaze away with the revolver sagging at his hip.

Long before Hal Montgomery's roustabout reached town, Buck had made his plans. First he would drop into The Terminal to see if the latest issue of his favourite western-story magazine was on the stands. Then if Donna O'Hara was on duty behind The Terminal's soda counter he would treat himself to some kind of a complicated fountain drink that took a long time to make. If Donna were in the mood he might ask her to attend the Saturday night dance with him. So to the Terminal he went.

Donna turned from her job of polishing the back mirror. "Oh... hello there, Buck." Her eyes fell upon the holster with the black butt of the .45 jutting out. "I see you're playing cowboy again."

Buck straddled one of the counter stools and hooked his boot heels securely on the wire rungs. "Could you stop ribbing me long enough to dish me up a Banana Special? And leave off the maraschino cherry."

Donna smiled and nodded. Expertly she slid out an oval glass dish and dropped into it two large globs of vanilla ice cream. "How did the harvest go this week?"

"Fine," Buck said. "The machine worked like a charm. Not a single breakdown the whole week. And the grain's averaging at least 50 bushels to the acre." Buck was grateful for the turn the conversation had taken. His voice warmed. "That's mighty good land Montgomery's got out there, Donna. And he's promised he'll sell me the south 40 whenever I'm ready."

"What would a cowboy want with a wheat ranch?" asked Donna. Swiftly she peeled a banana, halved it longitudinally, and set the two pieces snug against the ice cream.

"I'd figure to build a little place on it, and farm it," said Buck. "I don't figure to be a harvest hand all my life." He wanted to add, "I'll need someone on the place, too." But his nerve failed, and instead he asked, "Are you going to the dance to-night?"

"I thought I might."

"Already got a date?"

Donna nodded. "Yes, I have, Buck. I'm sorry."

Suddenly the Banana Special tasted very bitter to Buck. "Who you going with?"

"You don't know them."

"Them?" echoed Buck, faintly angered. "You don't mean you're being escorted to the dance by the very high and uncomfortable collar. After all, it had been no longer than yesterday that this part of Oregon had been devoted to cattle-raising rather than wheat-growing. The famous annual round-up celebration down at Pendleton attested to that.

Buck Treviis had ridden in the round-up more than once. In 1933 he had won the silver-mounted saddle, too. Through force of circumstances, he might be relegated to the prosaic labour of harvesting wheat for bread—but he could handle a gun from his hip.

Not that anyone in Creston over needed to handle a gun from his hip any more. That had been something that Buck had learned on his own initiative.

Buck was not more than 24, and all he knew about gun-fighting was from the stories he heard from the older inhabitants of Creston—and from the exciting yarns which appeared in the western-story magazines which were sold at The Terminal. Still, Buck had practiced handling a .45 calibre, and sometimes when he came into town he carried one slung from a careless holster strapped to his waist.

Whenever he came into Creston with the holster he took a lot of kidding, but it didn't bother him. The people who kidded him couldn't hit the broad side of a barn with a shot-gun; and they only half believed that Buck's shooting-iron was loaded. They might have done far less kidding had they realised.

On this particular evening, as he rode into town with Hal Montgomery, he wore his holster with its lethal cargo. It had been a hard week in the harvest fields, and Buck felt the need of relaxation. Part of his relaxation would be the feeling that he was a reckless young bucko who, on the slightest provocation, might blaze away with the revolver sagging at his hip.

Long before Hal Montgomery's roustabout reached town, Buck had made his plans. First he would drop into The Terminal to see if the latest issue of his favourite western-story magazine was on the stands. Then if Donna O'Hara was on duty behind The Terminal's soda counter he would treat himself to some kind of a complicated fountain drink that took a long time to make. Suddenly the Banana Special tasted very bitter to Buck. "Who you going with?"

"You don't know them."

"Them?" echoed Buck, faintly angered. "You don't mean you're being escorted to the dance by the Oregon National Guard, do you?" Miss O'Hara ignored the thrust. "I'm going with Mr. Latta and Mr. Markem."

"I never thought," said Buck, pushing the oval dish away from him, "that you'd start taking up with travelling salesmen."

"There's nothing wrong with travelling salesmen," reported Donna hotly. "They don't go around playing up like a circus or—something. But Mr. Latta and Mr. Markem don't happen to be travelling salesmen. Mr. Latta is here for his health, and Mr. Markem is a friend of his who came along with him. They're from the east. They just came in from Pendleton."

"Why didn't they stay there? Pendleton has hotels."

"Mr. Latta wanted quiet, so he came to a little town. He doesn't like hotels, either. He's staying at Aunt Sarah McDougals, and so is Mr. Markem."

"Maybe you're right. But I don't."

Buck did not finish, for at that moment the door of The Terminal opened and in walked two young men who looked a little as if they had stepped out of a vaudeville act. Both wore heavy tan polo coats and light gray hats with snap-down brims.

"Good evening," Donna greeted them sweetly. Too sweetly, Buck thought. "Mr. Treviis, this is Mr. Latta and Mr. Markem."

Buck Treviis did not unhook his heels from the tall stool. He merely surveyed the two from beneath his Stetson and nodded.

Mr. Latta, taller and darker than his companion, grinned at Buck. But it was not what Buck would have called a pleasant grin.

"Glad to know you," said Mr. Latta. His eyes fell upon the protruding .45. "Going to some kind of a shooting bee?"

"You never can tell," said Buck. Donna laughed. "Buck likes to imagine the west is still wild and woolly."

Latta's interest seemed still focused on Buck's revolver. "If you ran into a show with you'd get stretched out before you could wink your eye."

"Think so?" asked Buck. "Sure. Why, if you—"

Mr. Latta stopped suddenly because his friend had nudged him none too gently.

"Tony likes to talk about things he doesn't know anything about," Markem said pleasantly. "How about the dance, Donna? All about the dance, Donna? I'm ready to show us Creston's night life."

"I can't close shop for another half hour," Donna told him. "And then I'll have to go home and change. Suppose I meet you at the hall about 8:30."

Markem's eyes widened. "You mean people actually start dancing around here at 8:30?"

"Yeah," Buck answered him. "And that gets 'em into bed by midnight. Not a bad idea when you stop to think it over."

Both Latta and Markem stared at Treviis. They did not seem so much angered as astonished. Then suddenly Markem broke into a laugh. "Maybe you're right, Treviis. He turned to Donna. "See you at the dance."

The screen door slammed shut insolently, and Buck Treviis said, "I like it better in here now."

Slowly he unhooked his feet from the stool and stood up. When Buck unfolded to his full height he was rather an imposing fellow. Try as he might, Donna O'Hara couldn't keep admiration from her glance.

"I only wish," she muttered cryptically, "you weren't such a—such a nunny."

Buck grinned. "I guess I'll just stick around until you're ready to go home."

"Didn't you hear me say I was going to the dance with Mr. Latta and Mr. Markem?"

"Yeah. But I can take you to the hall, can't I?"

"Y-yes..."

"Another thing," mentioned Buck, an hour later, as they strolled toward Creston's hall, "when the dance is over I'd come right home."

"I'm quite capable of taking care of myself."

"Okay... I just thought I'd mention it."

As they neared the hall they were stopped by a familiar voice from one of the automobiles at the curb. Turning, they saw

FIVE CENTS MORE PLEASE.

Markem and Latta in the front by citizens in various states of undress. Among them was Chief of Police Jarvis to take Mr. Latta and Mr. Markem in hand.

"Oh... I didn't know you had your car with you," said Donna.

"We rented this one for the occasion," Latta told her. A slight thickness was in his speech. "I see you still have the cowboy."

"Yeah," drawled Buck. "I'm hard to get rid of." Then he let go of Donna's arm. "Well... hope you have a nice time, Donna."

Before Miss O'Hara could reply, the tall, stalwart figure was sauntering down the street. She bit her lip to keep from crying out after him. Suddenly she found herself wishing that she were going to the dance with Buck Treviis.

Under the spell of the music, and the really remarkable dancing and ball-room etiquette of Mr. Latta and Mr. Markem, Donna forgot her qualms. With two alien men at attention, she was the envy of every woman in the hall. She forgot Buck Treviis entirely—and then, all too quickly, the dance band was putting away its instruments.

But once they were in the car, Mr. Latta seemed unwilling to wind up the evening. While Mr. Markem talked to Donna entertainingly, his companion drove through the streets of Creston. It did not take very long, so he drove through them again, slowly.

"I'd really better be going along home," Donna said.

"Any minute now," Latta told her. "Markem has to see a fellow down here, and then we'll take you home." He brought the car to a sudden stop at the curb of the main street. Then he said, "All right, Joe," quickly, out of the side of his mouth, and Markem got out.

"Who'd be up at this time of night?" asked Donna nervously. "I mean, who is Mr. Markem going to see?"

"Just a friend," said Latta. "Don't you be—"

He cut his words short as though with a knife. Donna looked up to see a tall figure on the sidewalk. A familiar figure, legs spread wide apart, wide-brimmed Stetson pushed back.

"Duck down in the car!" Buck Treviis snapped, and somehow Donna knew that the words were for her. Crouched down against the cushion she saw Latta reach swiftly to the floor and bring up what looked like a sawed-off shotgun with a disc mounted atop it. But he never got his nose over the side of the car. Buck's right hand moved swifter than thought and there was a streak of yellow in the blackness. Donna heard Latta swear fearfully, heard his weapon clattering down against the floor.

"Don't!" Treviis barked. "Get out of there and over to the phone office. Tell 'em to get Jarvis down to the bank right now. They'll find Markem in there. I'll watch this machine-gun artist. They—"

He stopped. Down at the corner the door of the bank clattered shut against the stillness, and Markem ran across the dimly lighted street. He had heard the shot.

"Better hold it," Buck Treviis called. But Markem still ran on, and Buck's .45 exploded again. The man grabbed his arm and sat down comically in the middle of the street.

"Don't shoot again!" he yelled, and still sat there, nursing his arm.

Shots in the night are no longer commonplace in Creston, and within a very few seconds the main street was well populated by citizens in various states of undress. Among them was Chief of Police Jarvis to take Mr. Latta and Mr. Markem in hand.

"It wasn't so much," Buck Treviis told the trembling Donna on their way to the O'Hara house. "I figured this Latta was here for his health all right. I don't reckon it would be very healthy for him where he came from. And I figured that as long as they were here they'd try to pull something. All they could do in Creston would be to try the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank. When they rented that car I knew it would be to-night. So I just hung around."

"And all they—they wanted with me was—was—"

"Just to sit in the car with Latta so if any of the inhabitants came up they'd see a home town girl and think everything was okay." Buck Treviis said a husky arm around Donna O'Hara's waist.

"But I figure you're worth more than that. Out there 'on that south 40. That is, if you don't object to me playin' cowboy once in a while."

Donna O'Hara was silent. Which, in Irish, means no objections to anything at all.

MAN'S ARREST IN SCOTLAND

Soldier Accused of Cellar Murder

James Martin, alias Simpson, aged 21, was at Salford last month remanded until June 19 charged with the murder of George Breerton Cox, who was found dead in the cellar of his house at Hulme-place, Salford, bound, gagged, and with head injuries, on June 4.

Supt. Howard stated that in April Martin lived as a lodger with Mr. Cox. On April 20 he enlisted in the Lancashire Fusiliers, and since that date had visited Mr. Cox when on leave.

"After discovery of the body articles of clothing, some blood-stained, were found and will be identified as the property of Martin," added the officer.

Evidence of Martin's arrest at Renfrew was given, and it was stated that when charged Martin replied: "Right; I have nothing to say."

Paris.
MANY couturiers have devoted more space than usual to the midseason collections, to clothes for the big Paris season and to dressy frocks for midsummer wear. They are using enormous quantities of linen in ensembles. It appears in new pebbly and coarse towe weaves for sports and mornings. There are some new flax tweeds in plain colours, dark as well as light. Supple, uncrushable basket weaves with a silky surface are favoured, for both town and summer resorts. A heavy supple towe with a bead-like surface makes afternoon and evening suits. Shantung linen is seen in all sorts of costumes from morn till past midnight. Dressy afternoon and evening gowns are charming in linen-organandie or new handkerchief linens, sheer as chiffon.

Many of the smartest suits for town wear have linen jackets and wool or crepe skirts. Alix, who has probably done more than any one else to put linen on the style map, has a good outfit of this type. It has a white linen brocade jacket with square looped revers, which is fitted tightly at the waist in her favourite fashion. The navy blue wool skirt has an inverted pleat down the centre front. This is laced up over the stomach with a fine string of fabric that ties through eyelets in the plain white linen blouse, thus keeping everything shipshape.

A Lelong Suit
ONE of Lucien Lelong's assured runners is a dress and jacket suit. The cutaway jacket is very feminine because of its big elbow-length sleeves. These give character to 90 per cent of the new summer coats. It is in white linen, patterned with intertwined circle motifs of red, white and blue braid. The same braid trims the collar and short sleeves of the navy crepe frock. One of the motifs appears on the fastening of the navy leather belt.

Schiaparelli prefers to put wool topcoats over linen tailcoats or frocks. She uses a very heavy knobby loose-weave linen for her typical tailored jacket suits, worn with equally typical loose-fitting box-coats in contrasting wool. A stunning model is in spliced-brown linen, the top coat being in cream rustic wool. This coat is made interesting by rounded "yokes" set in the sleeve tops, echoing the yoke in the back.

LINEN SUITS

Linen suits have never been smarter than they are to-day: easy to wear, comfortable, and in tune with every occasion. A happy choice for late summer and the early days of Autumn.

CREAM FOR THE EYELIDS

THE skin about the eyes, being more delicate than the skin of the rest of the face, is said to require a fine cream for protection against the sun. A special preparation, supposed to keep the skin of this area soft and to prevent squint lines and crow's-feet from forming, has made its appearance. It is to be patted gently about the eyes before exposure. It gives a glistening effect to the eyelids that many women like.

PREPARING THE FACE FOR MAKE-UP

By MAX FACTOR

KNOWING how to apply make-up properly is a significant accomplishment. Each adroitly arched eyebrow, every deftly tinted cheek speaks eloquently of its fair owner's artistry.

But, in emphasising the technique of applying make-up, perhaps we have neglected the importance of preparing the face to receive it. "No skin can take make-up perfectly which is not kept scrupulously clean." Many stars have learned this by bitter experience. In a clean skin the pores are fine, tissue is firm and the texture is silky. Do you suppose Ginger Rogers could take a perfect make-up if she did not have such a skin? Emphatically not!

Therefore, your first consideration in preparing your face for make-up is maintaining a clean skin.

Let's take a peep at a normal-skinned young lady who knows how to make sure that her skin will always retain make-up perfectly. At night she takes plenty of time to remove all her make-up with cleansing cream. Taking it on the tips of her fingers in small dabs, she pats it smartly over her entire face. That means the forehead, neck . . . and even the ears.

After a few minutes, Miss Normal Skin takes up her towel or a few soft tissues and begins wiping the skin clean. Does she ### little tricks.

VARNISH: the soles of your shoes lightly, and they will harden and last much longer. The varnish will also help to keep out the damp. Tennis shoes will last the longer for this treatment.

CABLE: silk will be much easier to knit with if it is soaked in warm water while in hanks, wrung gently in a towel, then hung in a breeze. For coloured silk add a little salt to the water to set the colours.

knows that it is also necessary to wash her skin. This calls for a mild but invigorating skin freshener. She splashes the exhilarating tonic on her face and revels in its cool fragrance. To increase its stimulating effect and facilitate drying, she fans her face with a towel.

Now comes the most important, yet most neglected principle of all. Before the face is touched by a single bit of make-up it must be absolutely dry. If the skin is moist or oily, face powder will cake. Our Miss Normal Skin dries her face thoroughly and it is ready "to have and to hold" a perfect make-up.

Of course, the imaginary young lady we've taken as an example is just one type, but she can act as a standard from which we may deviate in each individual case. If your skin is oily, for instance, you would substitute an astringent for the milder skin freshener. You would probably also cut down on the number of treatments with cleansing cream in preference for a mild facial soap.

Dry-skinned damsels, on the other hand, would almost eliminate soap and water, since it tends to wash away what little natural oil is left in the skin. Even the extremely mild skin freshener should be used with temperance.

In each and every individual case the goal is the same . . . Keep your skin clean and free from moisture or oiliness . . . keep your pores fine and regular . . . and keep your skin firm and healthy.

In other words, keep it prepared for make-up!

complete the task with five or six long strokes across the face? Again an emphatic "no" — cleansing cream will never come off completely this way. She must use many short, firm strokes, covering just a small area at a time.

If Miss Normal Skin has found that she can "take" it, now is a logical time for an old-fashioned washing with a good mild facial soap and lukewarm water. Perhaps this will only be possible two or three times a week, but that depends on each individual skin. If you find that it makes your face feel drawn or tender, cut down on the number of washings.

When she awakens in the morning, Miss Normal Skin

THE PULSE OF FASHION

What a delight to enter VOGUE'S! Their frocks, crisp, fresh and inimitable bring us all the enchantment of Hollywood's loveliest stars. A range from the simplest little morning frock to the sweeping taffeta—vision of summer, strewn with nosegays of bright meadow flowers, abundantly sleeved, spreading into a skirt that has yards to spare. Ingenious organdies in very different moods, lovely enough to grace the lawns at the open-air courts of King Edward VIII. Their crisp flouncies are held in place by huge flowers and cool leaves, their loops and swirls and spots are happy decoration. Knife pleats flow gracefully from stitched yokes that helped to create that wonder you call Grace Moore. And each and all, the diaphanous chiffons, floating tulle, gleaming satins, have their finishing touch. There is the "Sweetest Flower that Blows" on the décolletage of a low gown, where it alone will know if the heart beats a little faster, or tucked into a waistband to bloom, or pinned to the feminine laces. Nothing has been forgotten in the VOGUE gowns from the first essential of form and line to the least detail. And their shoes! ANNIHILATION OF
KOWLOON B.G.C.

DALLAH UP 36 SHOTS AGAINST JONES

LUZ CHALKS UP SIX AND SEVEN

A BRILLIANT treble by Craigenower and three new 1936 records featured yesterday's Lawn Bowls League programme.
The K.B.G.C. were annihilated at the Valley, while Recreio owed their narrow win over the Police to H. A. Alves' four, who won 23-9.

The Recreio, who established the 1936 junior league aggregate record of 91 against the Football Club "B" came within one of that total against the Police to complete the "double."

The following are the new 1936 records:

SENIOR DIVISION
Team Aggregate—Old record—84 by C.C.C. "B" v. Talkoo.
New record—C.C.C. "A" 90 v. K.B.G.C.
Rink Win—Old record—24 shots by C. G. Silva and H. A.
Alves. New record—36 shots by A. R. Dallah.
Rink Score—Old record—37 by W. V. Field. New record—
43 by A. R. Dallah.

A. R. Dallah, who recorded the biggest rink win of the season—43-7 against F. J. Jones—led 16-6 at the 10th end, after which he scored at every head except one.

H. H. Rose, who recorded the second biggest junior rink win of the season—40-10 against J. Russell—scored 23 shots to his opponent's nil in the first 10 heads and included two sixes in his smashing success. F. X. Soares holds the junior record with 41-10 against J. A. R. Selby's rink.

Leading 11-10 at the 14th head, W. V. Field ran riot against
J. McKelvie, finishing up with a brace of fives to win 30-11.

A six followed by a seven enabled R. F. Luz to beat L. Guy by 23 shots, while a four followed by a seven was mainly responsible for M. Y. Adal's win over J. F. McGowan by six shots. W. E.
Hollands also had a seven, beating F. X. Silva by 24 to 18. Sixes were recorded by W. Gill (up 13), R. Basa (up 19), J. A. R. Selby (up 2), J. Bentley (up 7), C. H. Basto (up 7), F. X. Soares (up
19) and A. E. Carey (down 20).

BRITISH OLYMPIC ACES ON VIEW AT WHITE CITY STOTHARD AND EATON FAIL BADLY ON HEAVY TRACK

London, Yesterday. The Amateur Athletic Championships, constituting the British Olympic trials, were held at the White City Stadium yesterday under very poor conditions, the track being very heavy as the result of the recent heavy rains.

In the Two Miles Walk Final, the holder, A. A. Cooper (Gt. Britain), retained his title by beating Bernhard (Latvia) by 60 yards in 13 minutes 50 seconds. Churcher (Britain) was third.

MIXED DOUBLES CLASSIC FOR TO-MORROW U.S.R.C. TO MEET HOLDERS

INTERESTING FIXTURE
IN "A" DIVISION

There is an interesting programme of League tennis scheduled for this week, and to-morrow will see the vital clash between the United Services Recreation Club, challengers, and the Chinese Recreation Club, holders, in the Mixed Doubles League—their first encounter was washed out by rain at Causeway Bay over a month ago.

On Tuesday the Chinese Recreation Club, holders of the "A" Division title, will probably meet with stern resistance at the hands of the Indian Recreation Club, whom they meet at Sookunpoo.

The following is this week's programme:

KOWLOON TONG BOWLS GREEN

Informal Opening
This Afternoon

LARGEST IN THE COLONY

Having very successfully launched upon badminton and tennis campaigns, the Kowloon Tong Garden City Association have now turned their attention to lawn bowls, and their new green, which was laid down 18 months ago, will be used for the first time this afternoon at 4 p.m.

The opening ceremony will be quite informal, although members from other clubs, including the K.C.C. and the K.B.G.C., have been invited to participate in the first match.

The green, which is the largest in the Colony, has the makings of one of the best in Hong Kong, thanks to the careful attention of the green ranger. Although somewhat on the heavy side at the moment, it is expected to roll out faster after a few months of use.

The K.T.G.C.A. hope to enter a team in the Lawn Bowls League next season.

H.K. HOCKEY ASSOCIATION COUNCIL MEETING

The Council of the Hong Kong Hockey Association will meet in St. Andrew's Church Hall on Thursday next, at 5.30 p.m. to confirm the minutes of the last meeting, held last Thursday, to deal with correspondence, to prepare the Annual Report and Statement of Accounts for the third annual general meeting, to be held on Thursday, July 30, and to receive the rules drawn up by the Tournament Committee.

GERMANY TWO UP Win Both Singles In Davis Cup

Zagreb, Yesterday. Germany are leading Yugoslavia by two matches to nil as the result of the first day's play in the Final Round of the European Zone of the Davis Cup series.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm (Germany), Wimbledon finalist for two years in succession and holder of the French title, beat Pallada 6-4, 6-2, 6-8, 6-2, while in the other singles Holner Henkel (Germany) beat Puncce 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

Von Cramm was leading 5-1 in the third set and, though he allowed his opponent to take it at 8-6, he was playing as brilliantly as ever, showing no sign of the injury he sustained at Wimbledon.

The winners of this encounter will meet Australia in the Inter-Zone Final for the right to play Britain in the Challenge Round.

COUNTY CRICKET HELD UP BY RAIN

GEARY AND GOVER
BOWL WELL

SURREY FORCED TO FOLLOW-ON

London, Yesterday. The mid-week cricket programme was completely ruined by rain and, with but one exception, the games were either left drawn or the issue decided on the first innings.

At the Oval Leicester took first innings points from Surrey, thanks mainly to Armstrong and Geary, who came off with the bat and ball respectively. Geary took 6 for 35, which represents his best effort since his 6 for 36 and 7 for 7 (in the same match) against Warwick towards the end of May.

Gover, the Surrey fast bowler who has been showing so consistent form, took 5 for 72, but as the Oval batsmen failed badly, Surrey could muster only 116 and were forced to follow-on. They had scored 42 for 1 in their second venture when stumps were drawn.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were as follows:

At the Oval, Leicester took first innings points from Surrey. Leicester: 330 (Armstrong 117, not out; Gover 5 for 72). Surrey: 116 (Geary 6 for 35) and 42 for 1.

At Hove, Sussex played a drawn game with Lancashire. Lancashire: 255. Sussex: 93 for 4.

At Chesterfield, Derby took first innings points from Hampshire. Hampshire: 88 and 10 for 2. Derby: 336 for 8 dec. (Townsend 125 not out).

At Folkestone, Kent drew with Glamorgan. Kent: 375 (Todd 113). Glamorgan: 49 for 1.

At Bristol, Gloucester took first innings points from Yorkshire. Yorkshire: 50 (Goddard 5 for 23). Gloucestershire: 57 for 5.

At Trent Bridge, Northamptonshire took first innings points from Nottingham. Nottingham: 100. Northants: 130 for 4.

Eton v Harrow. In the Eton v Harrow match at Lords, Harrow, batting first, made 101 for 6 wickets, (Watson, 57 not out).

EARLIER RESULT

At Colchester, Essex defeated Somerset by an innings and 9 runs. Somerset: 127 and 84 (Eastman 5 for 33). Essex: 220, (Peter Smith 73).

NATIVE RECORD SHATTERED

The English Native record for the Hop-Step-And-Jump was shattered by a Dominion athlete in R. Metcalfe (Australia), not to be confused with Ralph Metcalfe of America, by 2 ft. 8 ins., when he cleared 49 ft. 5 ins. as against the previous best of 46 ft. 9 ins. Dickinson (Australia) also beat the previous mark with 47 ft. 11 3/4 inches, and Boyce (Ireland) was third with 45 ft. 1 inch.—Reuter.

The Men Behind "The Pictures"

Intricate Organisation

(By GERALD K. S. EDWARD)

"GOING to the pictures" has, the change-over, he has plenty to become so very much a part of.

of the average person's life that he hardly stops to consider the skillful organisation that brings all this entertainment before his eyes so smoothly and pleasantly.

The organisation, however, of a modern well-run cinema is an intricate affair. Take the operator's job, for instance. Many people imagine this is an easy task—just standing beside a machine and watching the film run through it. Actually that is far from the case.

There are two machines in alternate use all the time, and every nine or so minutes, at the end of each reel, a complete change-over from one machine to the other has to be made. The signals for this change are what are called "standard dots," two round black dots separated by twelve feet of film, which appear in the right-hand top corner of the picture on the screen itself.

Changing Over
On the first of these the engine of the resting machine is switched on, and at the second dot, when the machine has picked up its required speed, the change-over is made.

This is done by a shutter on each machine, which cuts off on one as it opens up on the other, and the film is picked up on the new reel at the exact point where it was cut out on the old. This is done so expertly that it is very rarely noticeable. It is the pride of a good operator never to have missed a change-over.

In most cinemas there are a chief, second, third and fourth operators. The last-mentioned is usually called the rewind boy, as one of his principal jobs is rewinding the reels after use.

Operators work in pairs. One is minding the machine in action while the other is preparing the spool for the next reel. During the nine minutes in which he is free, until his reel comes into action at

Rewinding

He has to remove the used spool, take it to the rewind room, possibly rewind it himself (if the rewind boy is busy elsewhere), put it away in its compartment, take out the new reel, put it in position and thread the film through the gate and on to the lower spool.

Then he has to sign up the log. For the exact time of the start and finish of each reel must be entered up with the initials of the operator beside it.

While he is actually tending the machine in operation his attention is fully occupied. He must constantly watch his arc to keep the light at its maximum. He must watch the screen to see that no mechanical flaws appear on it. He must keep his focus perfect.

All that is on the mechanical side. But an operator must be an artist too. His careful appreciation of the artistic side of the picture can make a tremendous difference to the presentation of it.

Sound-Control

He does this by a careful control of the sound—raising it a point where some vital dialogue is all the better for the emphasis of a slightly increased volume—lowering it slightly at the more overpowering and noisy passages. The good operator has his hand constantly on the sound control.

OIL WORKERS' STRIKE

Producing Centres Paralysed

Mexico City, Yesterday.

About 12,000 employees of the British Agulla Oil Co. have struck, paralysing nine important producing centres in the State of Vera Cruz.—Reuter.

Then all these effects which add so much to the presentation of a film, the gradual dimming of the house lights—the play of lights on the curtains as they glide silently apart and reveal the screen itself—the moulding of colours as the film begins—when we see the prefacing title and cast through rays of gold and crimson, passing through the soft shades of azure and then to black and white.

Meanwhile, in what is called the "non-sync room" another of the operators is controlling the volume of music from the gramophone record, intently watching the screen through his port, so that he may gently fade away his music just as the sound from the film itself breaks in.

And in the operating box the non-sync must be cut off as the film comes into action. All this means the intricate control of switches and subtle appreciation of the situation on the part of the operator.

Fire Drill

The administrative side has much to attend to also. Fire drill is held regularly, when the exact routine is gone through, as if an actual fire occurred in the building. Actually the chances of a fire threatening the house itself are extremely remote, owing to the strict precautions and regulations governing cinemas.

The operating box is in most cases built in a completely separated section. Besides the actual machines having many safe devices, the catching fire of a film itself is not likely to cause much damage.

Once a film has ignited in the gate it is highly probable that it will travel up to the top spool-box and will catch in a moment. But the fire cannot spread as there is nothing inflammable near the machine.

The operator's room will become thick with unpleasant smoke, but when this has cleared away the performance can be carried on with the other machine. In many places local regulations require that the fire brigade pass the room as free from further danger before the performance can be continued.

In any case, a close contact is kept with the fire brigade, who inspect the houses at various intervals to see that the fire-fighting appliances are in perfect order.

What She Was Wanting

Our London bus conductors are famous for their particular brand of Cockney humour. Mr. Colson says that he was once travelling towards Piccadilly when a rather haughty woman got in. Recognising an acquaintance, she began to tell her in a loud voice how much she was inconvenienced by her car being laid up, and how she disliked buses.

On arriving in front of the Duke of York's house, the conductor pulled the cord and, winking at the other passengers, said:

"Ere y'are, lady. You was wantin' 'Er Royal 'Ighness the Duchess of York, wasn't yer?"

Another day, however, the position was reversed. An old lady was climbing painfully to the top of a bus that was full inside, when the conductor shouted:—

"Urry up, lady; if you was to take yeast you'd rise quicker."

The reply, which came in a flash, was: "And if you were to take it you'd be better bred!"

TO YUNNANFU

Antique Yachi Of Marco Polo Will Not Prove Disappointing: Has Charm Of Its Own

(Left) The ramparts that guard the city of Yunnanfu.

(Right) The entrance to the Garden of Ta-Kouan-Lieou.

The following is the concluding portion of the article begun in the last issue of the "Sunday Herald," describing the journey from Hanoi to Yunnanfu. At the conclusion of the first instalment the journey had been described as far as K'ai Yuen (formerly A-Mi-Tcheou), the terminus of the second day's trip by train.

WE find at K'ai Yuen, within the bounds of the railway station, a bungalow with comfortable board and lodging. In the early morning of the next day of our journey by the steam train, we depart from K'ai Yuen (k.m. 220) at 6.40 a.m.

At a short distance from this point the train enters the pass of the Pa-Ta-Ho, a tributary of the Canton River. It follows the right bank of this stream, winds round the foot of hills, bare and showing the red earth they are made of, and high and gloomy cliffs mantled with meagre verdure, like granite walls, bathed and being gradually undermined by the roaring river. In this ravine the rise of the river during the summertime sometimes reaches impressive heights, while during the dry season there is just enough water to allow sampans to sail up the stream. If the water is muddy during the rainy season, by way of compensation it becomes clear again in winter time, and the landscape may then be compared to Pyrenean "gaves" or torrents.

At Siao-Long-Tan, a small place situated some 3,500 feet high, we cross the Pa-Ta-Ho river. The village, situated at a distance from the river bank, presents little groups of houses disseminated in a plain almost fully planted with maize.

A few miles further we leave behind us the above small plain to enter another gorge scattered with bushy hillocks, where large trees with their slender trunks rise above the thick coppice woods. We then run over the thoroughly cultivated plains of Sium-Kien-Szeu, La-Li-He and Pouo-Hi. The latter, situated at the confluence of the Pa-Ta-Ho and Si-Kiang rivers, extends for more than six miles. Its fertility is wonderful owing to underground water coming forth at the foot of the hills bordering the horizon on the right. A number of villages were erected in this plain, inhabited mostly by a Mussulman population.

The plain is bounded on all sides by hills as entangled and strange in shape as they are arid and dried up. Shortly after having left Pouo-Hi, we follow the left bank of the Ta-Tchen-Ho. The summits and slopes proudly expose their sturdy shape to the caress of the sun. Their curves project like muscles, and under a sallow-coloured vegetation one may easily imagine their strong frame. At the foot of the track the current of the emerald-green water of the river hurries away, carrying dead leaves and branches.

EARTHQUAKE REGION

WE now arrive at Si-Eul (k.m. 315), a region where frequent earthquakes occur. Our mountain trip then continues through a ravine, sometimes so narrow that it just forms a rocky passage for the roaring torrent. But further on, the clear and calm water appears with its bed of golden russet pebble-stones, or resembles blue jade basins as it masses itself up between the rocks. Then suddenly, the cliffs open a little, displaying an Alpine sunny meadow, where mountain lilies with their enormous flowers pleasantly alternate with the sweet-smelling daffodils.

The Lou-Fong-Ts'ouen railway station (k.m. 344,600) is erected in the centre of an important forest region, making an important point of commerce for timber and charcoal.

Crossing pleasant sites evoking memories of some parts of Europe, we reach Siu-Kia-Tou, a small village where every house has a flat roof, in order a large scale that this country has always been considered as the granary of Yunnanfu. Although the above plain is situated at an altitude of 5,200 feet, it enjoys a very mild temperature.

The town of Yi-Leang, surrounded by a city-wall with four gates, was built in the form of an amphitheatre on a hill surrounded by a pagoda.

The railway, now leaving the basin properly named of the Si-Kiang, penetrates into a rocky steep-sided pass where may be seen, here and there and very high above, a few hamlets built on the very tops of the mountains and sheltering under the shade of majestic oak trees and 100-year-old chestnut-trees.

The outlet stream of the Tang-Tche lake roars like a torrent at the foot of the track and as it dashes on the rocks scattered in the bottom of the ravine, thrown from one bank to the other, it at last sinks into deep holes, thus forming impetuous eddies; the water in its fury has dug at the foot of the cliffs strange grottoes decorated with stalactites sparkling in the sun.

PRODIGIOUS LABOUR

TUNNELS, retaining walls and projection passages succeed without interruption, testifying to the prodigious human efforts which have been required to overpass this mountainous chaos.

We feel lost in this passage, with its high vertical walls so close to one another that they seem to be wanting to shut up the audacious venturers attempting to profane its secret. The dull and awesome silence of this place is also only disturbed by the roaring torrent and the whistling of the engine. We are then ready for the pleasant plain of Ko-Paoing orchards in the lowest parts. At the foot of the cliffs where this track was laid is an indented coast covered with peach-trees, protruding its small promontories, adorned with white and pink flowers, into the blue sea. Villages have been built on the shore and there are to be seen a few sails forming light spots in the background. This lake, about nine or 10 miles in length and two or three miles in width, is said to have a depth of 650 feet in some places.

There exists, at the outlet of this lake, a hot-spring of sulphurous water long mentioned be seen and in every direction appear clumps of peach, plum, pear and pomegranate trees.

The increasing number of vegetable-cultivated lands attest the neighbourhood of a big agglomeration. We pass more and more villages, where every house with its horn-shaped roof seems to be merged into the dense vegetation.

Soon after, the screen of fir-trees and larches is split up and we discover a splendid panorama; in the background Yunnanfu, which seems to be leaning against the hills; on the left, the West Mountain overlooking gold and silver, jewels, Tall marble, knick-knack and curio shops.

Means of travelling in and out of town: Rickshaws, sedan-chairs, horse, sampans, a few cars.

TOUR INFORMATION

Trip from Hanoi to Yunnanfu and vice-versa: A regular night train service, with sleeping accommodation, between Hanoi and Lao-Kay (frontier), prolonged by the "Auto-rail" day service between Lao-Kay and Yunnanfu, allows the traveller to go from Hanoi to Yunnanfu and back in less than 23 hours, once a week (on Saturday, leaving at 8.45 p.m.).

By the ordinary daily service it takes three days to make the same trip.

These two idols depicting good and evil have always been the source of wonder to tourists.

in provincial records, the peculiar qualities of which are fully known and appreciated by the inhabitants of this region.

RUN TO YUNNANFU

WE shall now run down in an unbroken descent towards Yunnanfu. At first we cross bare hillocks of red clay, the Si-Chan lake; in the foreground the suburbs and the railway station, dominated by the two many-storied towers called Tong-Se-T'a and Si-Se-T'a, which mean respectively Tower of the East Monastery and Tower of the West Monastery.

We thus arrive at Yunnanfu station when the sun is setting. We are now at k.m. 465 distance from the frontier at Ho-Keou, terminus of the railroad, at an altitude of 6,400 feet.

YUNNANFU ITSELF

YUNNANFU, the antique Yachi of Marco Polo, will in no way disappoint the tourist. This town of 100,000 inhabitants offers the charm of its pagodas, its old city-walls, the bustle of its picturesque streets, the mildness of its temperate climate that may easily be compared to that of the centre of France, and the impressive sight of the mountains surrounding the town.

The following are the main excursions out of the town:

The Si-Chan or West mountain;
The "500 Genii" pagoda;
The Hoi-Lon-Tan pagoda, also called the "Cavern of the Black Dragon."

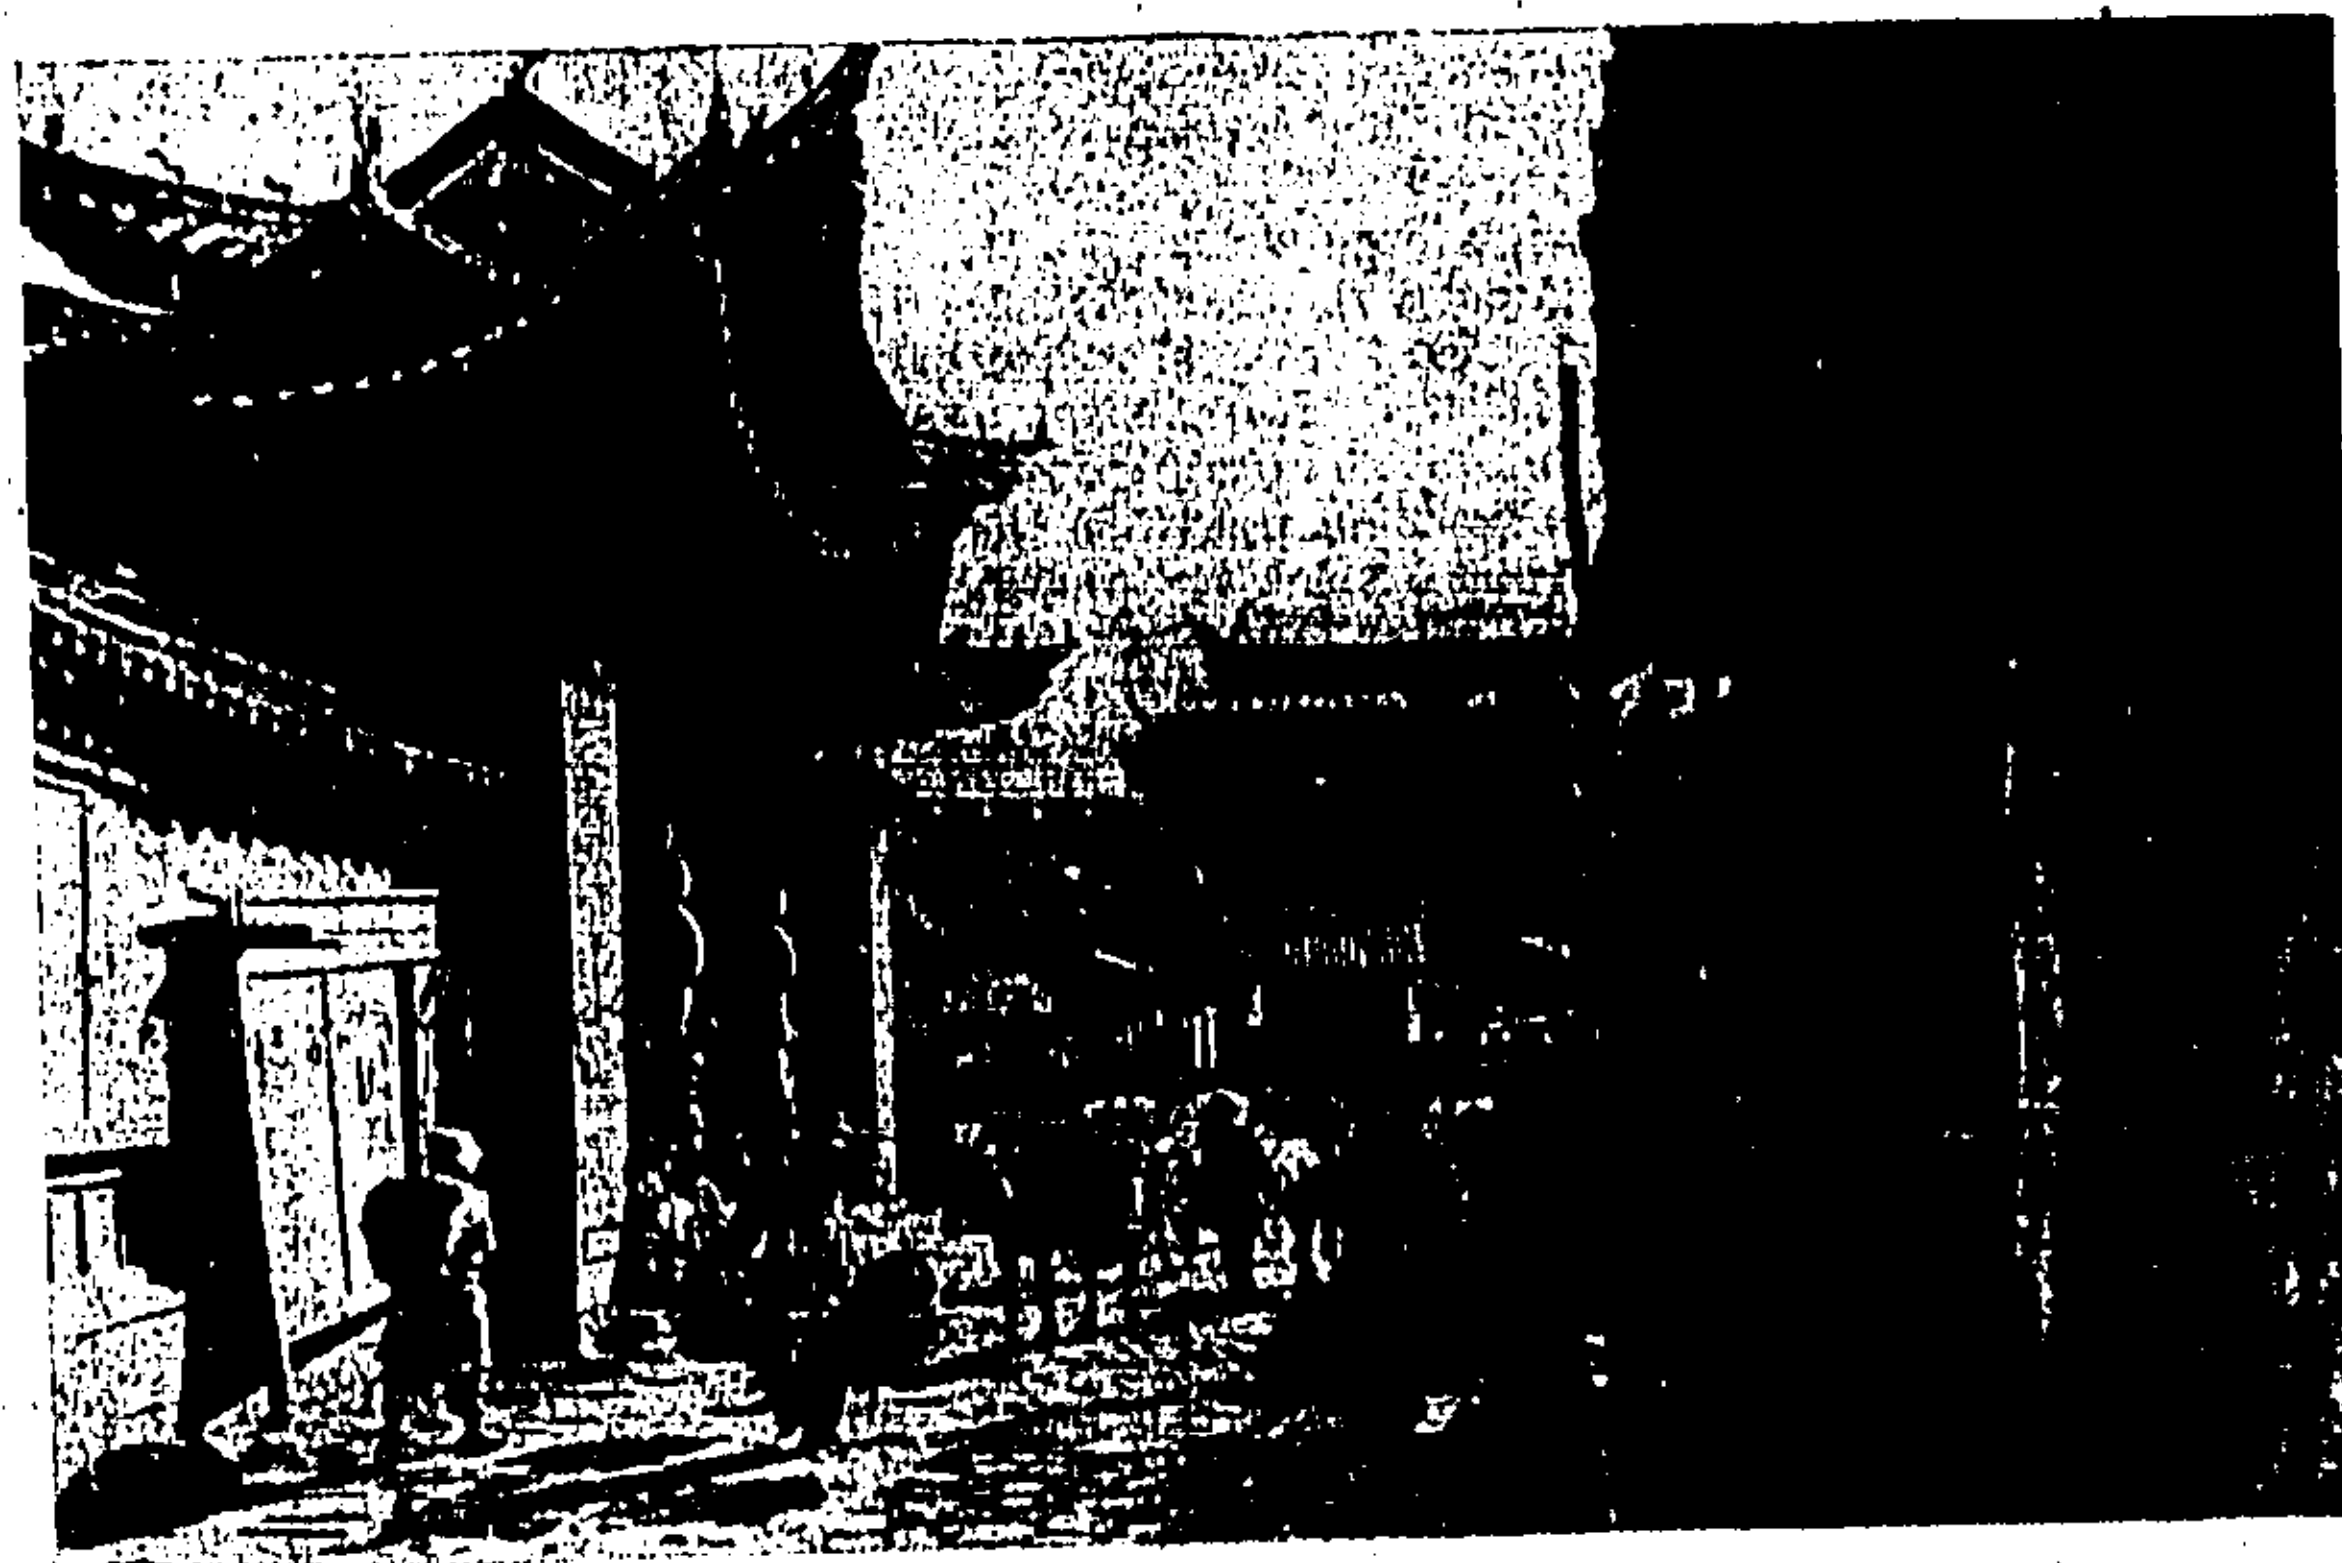

For hotels and living accommodation there are three European hotels and the Sanatorium Calmette (French) in Yunnanfu, which allow tourists to live in the town for four to eight plastras per day (American plan). (One plastra equals approximately 10 francs). Special accommodation can be made for long sojourns.

In Yunnanfu there are:

Chinese Hotels.
Banks: Banque de l'Indochine and Chinese Banks.
Consulates of Britain, France, America and Japan.
Hospitals: English, French and Chinese.
Religions: Protestant and Catholic.
Shops: Fur, silk, ivory, jade, only covered by a meagre vegetation. The unevenness of the soil diminishes as we pursue our way, and soon only slight undulations of friable earth are to be found. These undulations are crossed with ravines, due to boisterous storms occurring from time to time. The impression of dullness of this bare and almost desert site soon disappears as we approach Tch'eng-Kong. Here the earth is intersected by canals and the dikes bordering them, and is shaded with fir-trees and larches which make large dark lines in all directions.

For miles and miles, paddy, maize and sago fields may to make up for the insufficient place for spreading the crops to dry.

PLAIN OF YI-LEANG

THROUGH more and more narrow doles, slopes, tunnels, bridges and parapets we enter the plain of Yi-Leang, (about k.m. 390), bifurcation of the leading roads to Burma, Thibet, Szechuen and Kouil-Tcheou. This plain, 25 miles long and 10 miles wide, is of a remarkable fertility, it being watered by the Kou-Tchen-Ho River. Its population is estimated at 200,000 people, inhabiting about 300 villages, and cultivating corn, rice and beans on such Ts'ouen, with its station of the same name.

Wagons loaded with coal standing on the track attest to the numerous mines situated some 15 miles further, from where charcoal is transported in rudimentary carts with creaking wheels, drawn by slow-moving buffaloes.

We ascend very steep inclines to reach the culminating point of the railway line (6,750 feet high—pass of Chouei-T'ang), dividing the watersheds of the Canton and Yang-Tse-Kiang Rivers. And suddenly, at a turning of the line, appears an azure lake, bordered with purple hills and bathing bloom-

● Ordinary brushes do not reach and properly clean the back teeth. The big end-tuft and notched bristle surface of the Prophy-lac-tic Perma-Grip permits it to reach and thoroughly clean in and around all the teeth, front and back—inside and outside.

Prophy-lac-tic Perma-Grip brushes are of the highest quality—scientifically spaced, flexible and efficient. They clean far better, far more thoroughly. ## "SAI SHEUNG"

"The Romance Of The Western Chamber"

SPECIAL TREAT FOR PLAY-
GOERS NEXT TUESDAY

"Sai Sheung" or "The Romance of the Western Chamber" is a classical Chinese play written in 1271. It is a gem of Chinese literature and is considered by many to surpass "Lady Precious Stream" both in its plot and in the beauty of its songs and dialogue. Mr. S. I. Hsiung, the producer of "Lady Precious Stream," has written an English version of this play and it is understood that it will be staged in London in the near future.

Meanwhile, local theatre-goers will have the good fortune of seeing this play at the King's Theatre on Tuesday next at 9.30 p.m., when a Chinese theatrical performance will be held in aid of the funds of the Chinese Company of the Police Reserve. Mr. Sit Kok Sin, M.S.P. and Mrs. Sit, celebrated artists of the Chinese stage, will take the leading roles, supported by a well-known cast.

Cantonese Music

"The Western Chamber" has been in the repertoire of Mr. Sit Kok Sin for more than 10 years and he has won his fame largely through the portrayal of the part of the hero in this play.

Much of the poetry is sung to the music of Cantonese opera and the beauty of the songs should be apparent even to those ignorant of the Chinese language.

It is indeed rare that the public has an opportunity of seeing a real Chinese play in a theatre such as the King's, and no one should miss the performance on Tuesday.

Advance booking is now open at the Headquarters of the Chinese Company of the Police Reserve at Pedder Bldg., 1st floor.

Special traffic arrangements have been made with the Police for chauffeur-driven cars to be parked on the east side of D'Aguilar Street and the north side of Wellington Street east of D'Aguilar Street, from 11 p.m. onwards, to wait for their owners.

"CINEKO"

NEW LOCAL FILM
PUBLICATION

REMARKABLE VALUE

A new publication, designed to appeal to film fans, has just made its appearance. It is a monthly magazine called "Cineko," and is published at 20 cents a copy by Fareast Enterprises, National Bank Building.

The first issue contains a wealth of information and reading matter, having to do with film stars in person and new films in general. It is profusely illustrated, and with the current issue is given away a special photographic supplement featuring Wendy Barrie, Hong Kong's own film star.

Among the many articles published in this issue is one by Mae West, who is described as the "famous curvaceous hip-swayer in a counselling mood," on the "Seven Cardinal Sins" for women. The front cover is a charming portrait of Sylvia Sydney.

Altogether the magazine is a readable and attractively produced publication which is extraordinarily cheap at the price.

YOU enjoy using Squibb Dental Cream. This pure, agreeable dentifrice brings out the natural whiteness of your teeth without the slightest harm to enamel or gums. It contains no grit, no astringents, no bleaches.

More important still, Squibb Dental Cream is antacid and neutralizes the Germ Acids which cause decay and gum irritations. These acids form in the Danger Zone which is the space between teeth, where teeth meet gums and imperfections in the enamel. Here food particles the toothbrush cannot reach ferment and form the harmful acids. Dentifrices that merely "clean" are powerless against them.

Use Squibb Dental Cream for cleaner, whiter teeth, for a refreshed mouth and scientific protection against decay and gum troubles.

THE PASSING HOUR

IT is rather a quaint comment on our boasted human superiority, our progress, our ton-heavy civilisation, that we enjoy nothing more than a clever satire on the human race. It is a saving grace that we are able to have intervals of humour when we do not take ourselves too seriously. Annoying as it must be to the wise and learned, it remains true that the solid armour of complacency that resists all the heavy tomes can be pierced by the arrow of wit. It was said in the days of France's splendour that her system of government was "an absolute monarchy tempered by epigram." It has even been given as a definition of man that he is "an animal that laughs."

"THIS SIMIAN WORLD"

THESE reflections are suggested by reading a short but very incisive book with the above title. The author starts by contemplating, with a disillusioned friend, the ant-like swarms of people passing up and down Broadway. The sight suggests that there is so little of effective intelligence in such promenading that it can only be explained by our near relationship to Kipling's "Bandar-log," who are ever chattering and inquisitive and so rarely able to concentrate on anything long enough to achieve it. And thence his satiric mind passes to wonder what we should be like if we had come to our civilisation not through the "primates" but through some other genus, such as the cat tribe, the elephant, and so on.

OUR ANIMAL COUSINS

THE cat, for example, would never have developed into a civilised creature that would drill in armies for a fight, but he would never in private life have abandoned the right to single combat. His failure has been due to his craft—no society can be based on a population of crafty people. The dog missed his chance by adopting man as his idol—idolatry can only make slaves. The ant, of course, failed because he devoted his whole life to the community without safeguarding that interval of leisure to sit down and wonder what was the use of all his industry and thrift.

THE HELPLESS HUMAN

HOW often has it occurred to one that, dropped as a Robinson Crusoe on an island infested by wild beasts, man would be the most helpless creature of all? His brain would be useless to him without sleep, and sleep would turn him over as a defenceless victim to any beast that had claws or horns. He cannot run like an antelope, nor has he a shell like a tortoise. In those prehistoric days of interminable struggle he would never have held his own against the dinosaurs and other massive beasts unless he had had the wit to use stones and logs of wood as weapons, and to combine into families to share sentry duties and food. The dinosaurs perished because it took them so long to eat what their big bodies required that they had no time to take "safety first" precautions. The use of tools, and social co-operation—these were the keys to conquest.

BOULEVERSEMENT

THE author has a light touch and does not push his imaginations beyond amusing analogies and contrasts. But is it not rather obvious that the development has gone full circle, and that the never-ending struggle is now entirely the reverse of its own early stages? It began as a war of man against the biggest animals. It has now become an equally strenuous struggle against the smallest—the microbe. The strong suit of the microbe is his enormous power of multiplication, generation, proliferation or whatever the right word may be. The ingenious human fights him partly by destroying his base by cleanliness, partly by the weapon of antisepsis. The influenza plague of 1918 showed that the fight is still on, and it is by no means certain that some day a still mightier and more fatal enemy might win the day. An earth peopled only by poisonous insects! There is no need yet to be pessimistic!

A RECKLESS ACT OF LOVE PRECIOUS OINTMENT ON THE HEAD DEVOTION THAT COUNTS NOT THE COST

(By the Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

ONE of the most beautiful and touching incidents in the life of Our Lord is surely that one which records the moment when a woman poured out her "ointment of spikenard very precious" on His Head.

There was one who said that it was pure waste, and at first sight it looks very much like it. To take a box of ointment, costing about £30 in English money, and pour it on a man's head showed, if nothing else, a lack of practical common sense. It was foolish, "just like a woman!"

How much more usefully might that ointment have been expended. To those poor fishermen who had become disciples it represented a small fortune: enough to keep a poor man's family for a whole year in a country like Palestine—not to mention the hungry and naked poor who were in Jerusalem itself. It might have been given to them: and here was this silly sentimental woman simply "wasting" it!

Not Wasted

But somehow that was not Christ's idea about it. If any one ever loved the poor, He did; but He did not hesitate to assert that Mary had done right on this occasion. It had not been wasted. So far from that, this impulsive act was so pleasing to Him that He bestowed upon that woman the highest commendation given by Him to any single person of whom the Gospels speak. Why did He think so much of it? It was foolish, extravagant, impulsive, yes; but it was an act prompted by simple devotion to Him personally. It was done just for love of Him. It might have been a foolish thing to do, but there was something beautiful and splendid all the same about this reckless devotion of this kind, something that He liked to see.

What strikes one so forcibly in the Gospel story is the enormous value set by Christ upon anything which springs from a heart full of devotion towards Himself. It was that which counted so much with Him. He lived among a nation full to an unusual degree of people living correct and even painfully moral lives. But His heart never went out towards them. They left Him cold. On the other hand we get glimpses here and there of men and women with many faults

THE USE OF TOOLS

MUCH more serious is the danger that lurks in man's own heart. He owes so much to the tools that he first discovered how to use that he has applied his brain to the invention of still more powerful tools without waiting to think how they ought to be used. Every tool requires a man to direct it, and the tending of our tools, our machines, even in the conditions of peaceful security, has become a monotonous, sub-human job that tends to unfit us for human activities in what leisure is left. But in the more strenuous days of war our tools, in the form of guns and gases, have become capable of destroying the whole race—which is what they were intended for.

THE USE OF COMBINATION

EVEN the other element of our early ascendancy—formation into groups that would fight together—has become a danger in a rapidly filling world. Some of the groups adopt the doctrine that we live to fight, rather than fight to live. One recalls by contrast the much more savage satire of Dean Swift in "Gulliver's Travels." Swift hated snobbery and the pride of self-complacency, and he set out to make our race feel small for the good of their souls. It is with something of a shock that one reads that his fierce attack was really more superficial than a modern disciple would indulge in. Our problems are bigger, our follies are more glaring, our mistakes more dangerous.

and failings, sometimes even of sinful life—a Peter, a Mary Magdalene, and so on—and He takes them to His heart and gives them His special blessing. Why? Because He had seen and felt that, in spite of everything, they loved Him.

To Love Much

And just there we strike the heart of all true religion—to love much; to love Him, and to love Him quite absolutely recklessly. There are so many thousands of good, earnest Christian people in the world to-day; their lives are so exemplary, so blameless morally. And yet how is it that all their piety makes so little impression on behalf of Christ upon the generation of mankind?

Why do these good people so greatly fail to fire the imagination of others around them and start them out on the greatest quest of all—to find the Way of Life? Is it just this, namely, that with all their moral excellence it is so rarely that you ever catch one of them doing something really foolish, quixotic, and reckless for Christ?

If only they were seen doing something really silly for love of Him; "going off the deep end" for Him in some idiotic way; throwing everything to the winds; and not stopping to ask whether what they were doing was of the small-est possible use, but merely conscious that it was out of love for Him that they were doing it—it would make you want to throw up your hat and cheer!

No Dullness

Whatever people thought about religion in the Middle Ages they never said that it was dull. But then you had people like St. Francis going about taking off their clothes and giving them to beggars; seizing hold of lepers and kissing them, and doing all sorts of preposterous things; but the point is that these very preposterous things, did, anyhow, make people "sit up and take notice" of Christ, and also made them feel that there was something in religion.

The greatest disaster which ever befell the religion of Jesus Christ was when it ceased to be quixotic and romantic, and became dull and respectable; when it lost its devotion to Christ. The Crusades were probably a very futile performance in the light of modern ideas, but they were better than what Sunday morning church attendance stands for to-day in thousands of parishes.

They had at least a romantic, if topsy-turvy love for Christ at the back of them. Think for a moment of the mediaeval church, with its perfectly reckless outpouring of artistic beauty of moulding and tracery, carved work, painted fresco, and stained-glass windows, and contrast that with the kind of tight, dull, featureless and unimaginative churches to be found so often to-day.

Two Ways Of Thinking

Behind these two types of church lie two entirely different ways of thinking about Christ, and we see at once that what Christianity has lost to-day is its romance; its reckless, silly, passionate love of Christ which thought nothing was too good or too costly to give Him, nothing too reckless to do for Him. How He seemed to love people who did not stop to count the cost!

A Peter jumping into the sea to get to Him, the widow putting the whole of her living "at one go" into the offertory, Matthew leaving his money on his office desk to run after Him; Mary wasting her precious ointment. When such lovers of Christ are about many foolish things are done, but the whole house is filled with the odour of the ointment. It is folly of the right sort.

What we want to-day are heaps more foolish Christians! Then people will begin to think about Christ, because they will be forced to do so. As it is, He is in danger of dying of the innocuous respectability of His followers.

Social Conscience

MR. CASSIDY chose for his Rotary address a subject that opens up all manner of interesting enquiries and reflections, historical, scientific and philosophical. Like the practical man he is, he confined himself to the organisations we see at work in our Colony, and the question of how to make them more effective. Even so, he had a long list to deal with, and it would have taken more than one speech to do more than mention most of them.

Nothing is more puzzling to a general student of history than the growth and decline of various movements of the human spirit to mould our life and its environment "a little nearer to the heart's desire." To make our study fruitful it would be the very reverse of the record we read in books. Historians tell us of the achievements of each generation, its successes, its outstanding men. The reverse side of the picture would be its neglects, its failures, its prophets that were stoned or ignored. The public conscience develops a special moral sensitiveness along one line, but it is balanced by a callousness to some other evil that becomes clamant in the next generation. Only by reading of that next generation's struggle do we find that there were earlier prophets who protested in vain.

During the Christian era there has not been any lack of lip-service to the ideal of seeking the well-being of all men, but that must, of course, include oneself; and different ages have drawn the boundary line sometimes strictly and sometimes very loosely indeed. St. Paul was proud of his Roman citizenship, but he was careful to send a runaway slave back to his master. The robber barons of the Dark Ages of Europe were ready to protect their own vassals; their successors in the days of chivalry who rode out to champion the oppressed or to retrieve the Holy Sepulchre were punctilious in extorting knightly dues from their poverty-stricken tenants. The culture of the eighteenth century was oblivious of starvation in the lower grades of society, and was itself a reaction from the horrors of the sixteenth century, when men were so eager to save other men's souls that they were willing to torture or slay their bodies. The high endeavours of the Puritans ended in a hard condemnation of offenders, and in a morality which recognised the righteousness of any means of making money that was within the law. Hence in the last century, though slavery was abolished, slums and sweat-shops were accepted as ordinances of a law of nature.

We are told by all the younger writers that the characteristic of the twentieth century is sympathy. The quality was exemplified in a curious incident in the career of the ex-Kaiser Wilhelm. He witnessed an accident at a place where it was found there was no hospital to which the victim could be taken. He caused a cottage hospital to be established, and in declaring it open, explained that the unpleasant sight had quite destroyed his pleasure in the day's jaunt when it occurred. Sometimes one wonders whether much of our philanthropy has not the same origin, not so much in sympathy for the unfortunate as to ease our own consciences for the better enjoyment of our jaunt through life.

Whether our age be sympathetic or not it remains true that more men have met horrible deaths in war in this century than in any other, and that at no time did Governments, as such, earn, or at any rate receive, less loyal support or gratitude from the governed. Where is our particular callousness? Surely it is in this, that with the annihilation of distance our sympathies must be broadened. We must not be content with the minimum of help, curtailed by race and creed and class, but with the optimum—the best that we as private individuals working with the State and giving its administration the human touch can do to secure for each man and woman the best possible conditions of life. Our abstract economics are a beating of the air unless they include, as Maynard Keynes has done in his latest book, the human element for which the science exists. Not a barren surplusage of the sort of wealth that is expressed in figures should be our aim, but the best available use of wealth for everybody.

To come down from ideals to the practical needs of to-day, we can most heartily endorse Mr. Cassidy's proposal—which we ourselves made some time ago—that the King George V Memorial should take the form of endowing a children's playground fund. Nothing could do more to improve the health of the next generation than the provision of good healthy play in the growing years of childhood.

Hong Kong Personalities

This is the hundred and first of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyo, the talented Hungarian artist.

MR. K. F. NOBLE

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Kenneth Frederick Noble, Acting Trade Commissioner for the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. Noble is Canadian-born, having first seen the light at Vancouver, British Columbia, on April 9, 1908. After completing his High School course he entered the University of British Columbia in 1923, obtaining his B.A. degree in Political Economy and Banking in 1927. While at the University Mr. Noble had some exciting experiences during the big Vancouver strike of 1925, which had its repercussions in the local longshoremen's strike of the same year. During 1923 he took a post-graduate course for the degree of M.A. and the following year he won a Teaching Fellowship at the University of California, where during the next two years he finished his studies for the degree of Doctor of Political Economy.

In 1931 Mr. Noble passed his Civil Service examinations and was posted to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Trade and Commerce, at Ottawa, Ontario, as Statistician in charge of unemployment. The following year he was transferred to the Commercial Intelligence Service and promoted, in 1933, Assistant Trade Commissioner in Hong Kong under Major V. E. Duclos, for whom he is now acting.

Mr. Noble's favourite out-door sports are, or rather were, hockey and English Rugby. He played as a wing forward in the University of British Columbia team that won the Canadian championship in 1927, for the Olympic Club of San Francisco in 1930 and for Ottawa in the Inter-Provincial League matches in 1931 and 1932. He took up the game again on his arrival in the Colony and played for the Hong Kong Football Club until an unfortunate injury to his knee compelled him to give it up permanently. He now finds solace in golf.

Mr. Noble is a member of the Hong Kong Club, the Cricket Club, the Jockey Club, the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club and the H.K. Football Club.

DR. KOTEWALL'S APPOINTMENT

General Satisfaction
Expressed

The appointment of the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., LL.D., to the Executive Council was officially announced in yesterday's issue of the Government Gazette, and it will be no exaggeration to say that the announcement has given general satisfaction to all sections of the community.

Dr. Kotewall, by reason of his mature experience in both Councils, his tact and, above all, his great ability, is ideally suited for that position and there is no doubt that he will carry on the good work performed so ably by his predecessor, the Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow.

It would be difficult to record all the services Dr. Kotewall has rendered to the Colony, but the speech he made in connection with the $30,000,000 loan in 1925, after the memorable strike and boycott, stands out as one of the most brilliant speeches ever made in the Colony. Indeed it was referred to, at that time by the Sunday Herald, as the "$30,000,000 Speech."

Five Years Ago

(Extracts from the Sunday Herald of July 12, 1931).

The Canton Chinese Navy beat the British Navy by 2 goals to 1 in a football game at the Chinese Athletic Stadium at North Point. Among the spectators were Lieut. Commanders Shoa Kang-lee, T. Y. Yang and Chen Wai-ki, the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall C.M.G., LL.D., and the Hon. Dr. S. W. T'so.

Wyatt, Mowbray (own goal) and Cheuk Kwok-kong were the goal-scorers.

A very successful concert was held at the Kowloon Football Club. Among the artists were Messrs. Li Chor-chi, C. D. Townsend, Miss Lorna Tolan, Pipo Major Mackie and the four B's (Messrs. J. W. Baldwin, Best, Bishop and B. Baldwin).

At the Victoria Recreation Club's Night Fete Miss Young Sau-king just beat Mrs. MacMahon in the 100 Yards Free-Style event open to ladies of the Colony.

The graduates of the Hong Kong University beat the Services by three clear goals in an exhibition water-polo game at the Victoria Recreation Club. S. H. Wong, D. Liang and S. Gittins were the goal-scorers.

The Police Recreation Club sustained their tenth successive defeat in the First Division of the Lawn Bowls League when they lost to the Kowloon Cricket Club by 8 shots.

Sentenced

"Defendant was lucky not to be electrocuted," said Sub-Inspector O'Connor at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning when Chan Kau, aged 27, a paint scraper, was charged before Mr. W. Schofield with the theft of three feet of electric cable from the Talkoo Docks on Thursday.

Sub-Inspector O'Connor said that about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning some welding work was being done on a ship when suddenly the supply of electricity was cut off. Investigation was made and it was found that the cable supplying the current for the work had been cut and thrown to the bottom of the dock. Defendant was later arrested with parts of the cable cut up.

The Inspector added that the whole cable was now useless and had had to be replaced by a new one.

The accused was sentenced to two months' hard labour and ordered to pay $50 amends or serve another six weeks.

NEW STAMPS FOR HONG KONG

No Definite Details Yet Received

Although nothing definite has been heard from the Home authorities as yet, it seems more than probable that within the short space of less than a year Hong Kong will have a new issue of stamps, in common with all sections of the British Empire.

Interviewed by the Sunday Herald, Mr. H. R. Butters, the Postmaster-General, said that he was not in a position to give more definite details about the scheme but he had heard that the new stamps to be brought into use after the Coronation, will all bear a portrait of His Majesty King Edward VIII, and that the pictorial issues of some of the Colonies will all be withdrawn.

REVIVING THE DEAD

Life Can Be Restored After Electrocutation

WHAT happens in the body when a man is electrocuted? How does an electric current snuff out the spark of life? Can the victim be revived? Questions like these come to mind whenever an electrical accident in the home or in industry is reported, or when a criminal is legally executed by electrocution.

The questions can be answered, but medical scientists are still working to find a sure way of restoring the victims of accidental electrocution.

Victims of certain kinds of electric shock can be resuscitated. The victim of an intentional electrocution, an executed criminal, cannot possibly be restored to life, authorities agree.

Bodies Examined

IN the legal electrocution, important nerve centres in the central nervous system are hopelessly destroyed by the heat generated in the electrocution. A number of physicians have examined the bodies of criminals after such executions. Dr. E. A.

Spitzka made 27 such examinations and reported to the Medical Society of New Jersey that the temperature of the body rises and may reach 129.5 degrees Fahrenheit. (Normal body temperature is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit).

The brain of an electrocuted criminal shows hemorrhage of the small blood vessels, aneurism of the arteries and congestion in the veins. In some cases parts of the brain and spinal cord are inflated and look as if gas or air had been blown into them.

Decomposed Blood

THE blood itself can undergo electrolysis, be broken up into electrically charged ions and consequently is decomposed.

Horrible as the details may sound, electrocution is said to be beyond doubt the "most humane method of executing criminals." There is no pain, consciousness is at once abolished, death is certain, as from 7 to 10 amperes of current, of 1,800 to 2,000 volts potential, are passed through the body.

What about the all-too-frequent accidental electrocutions: the man who reaches from the bathtub in his own home to turn on an electric heater and is killed by the 100-volt current of his household lighting circuit; or the lineman of the telephone company, working on a wire carrying a minute current, too low to shock him, who may nevertheless be fatally shocked if the current is unexpectedly stepped up by induction from a nearby transmission line?

Artificial Respiration

ARTIFICIAL respiration may save these victims and should always be tried, starting immediately and continuing it, for hours if necessary, until the patient breathes again or the rigidity of death sets in.

In some cases of electric shock, however, artificial respiration cannot restore the victim to life because the electric current has affected his heart, causing what physicians call fibrillation. In this condition, each fibre of the heart muscle acts individually, instead of all contracting together as they normally do.

When the heart gets the jitters this way, it fails to pump blood out to the rest of the body. Death does not follow immediately. But unless the heart jitters are stopped quickly, the victim might as well be dead. The brain, deprived of nourishing blood, quickly starves to death.

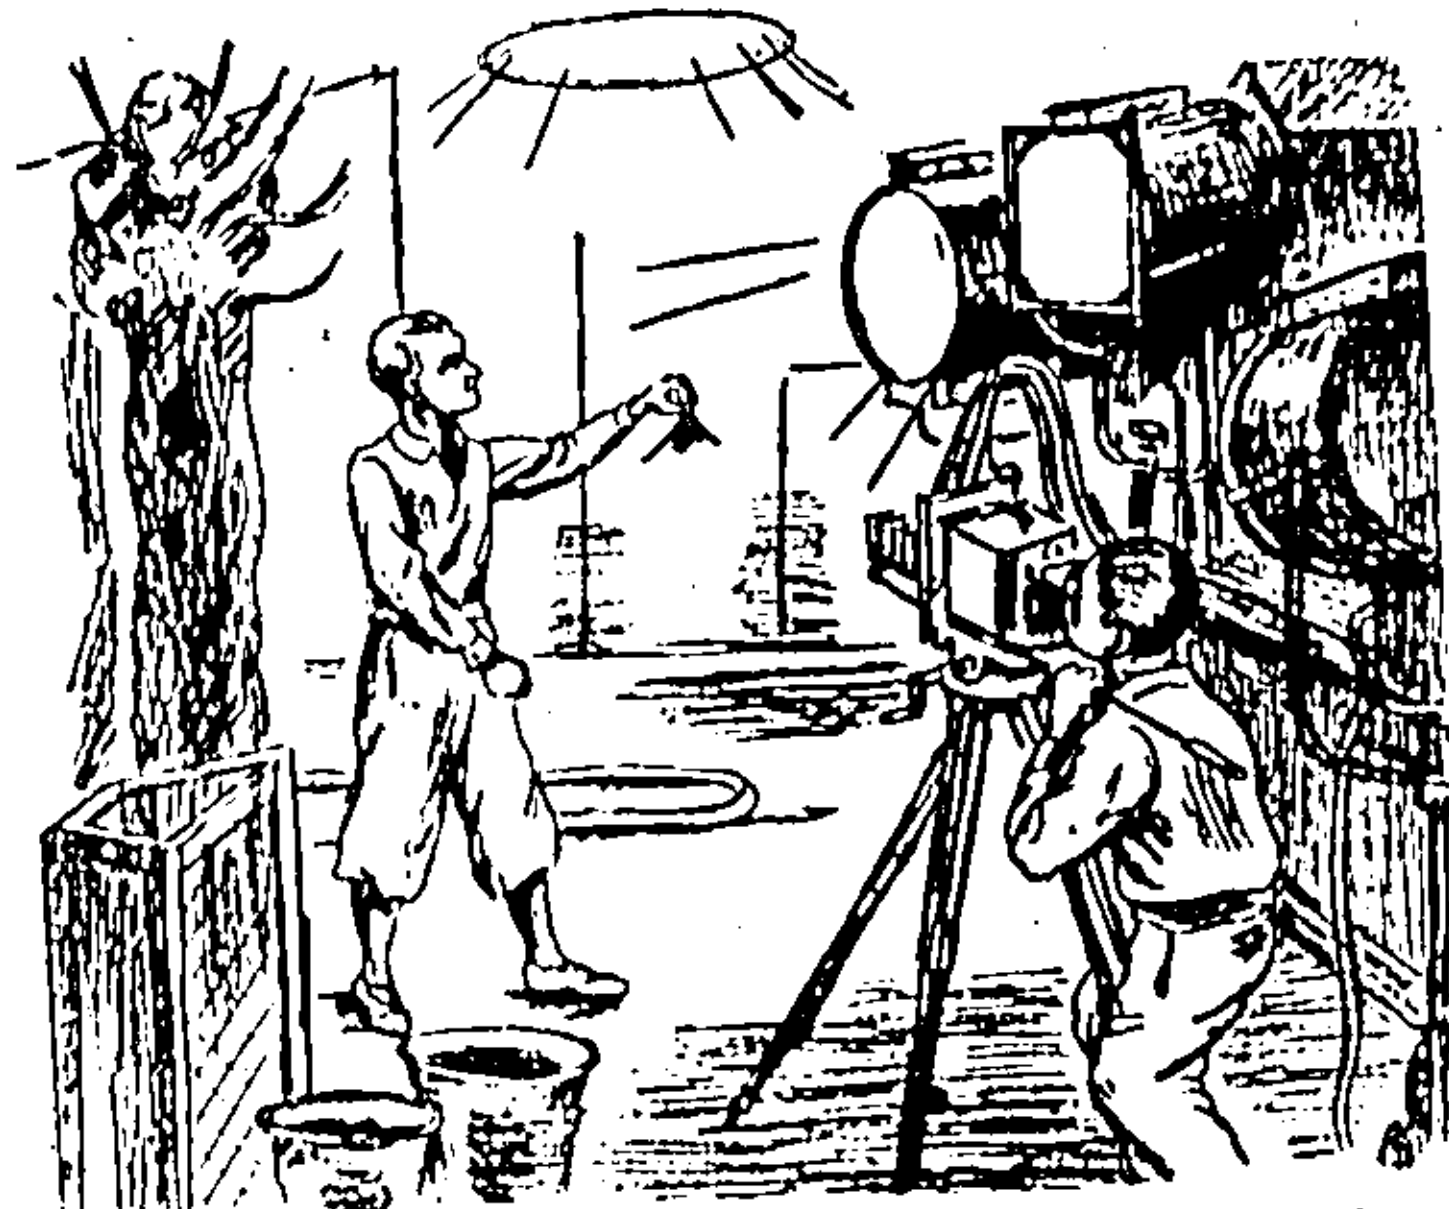

"If I had been shocked by an electric current, I would not want anyone to bring me back to life," declared one eminent physiologist in discussing this point. "For if I were resuscitated, the chances are my brain would not be functioning and I would be dead from the neck up."

Fatal Home Accidents

ALTERNATING current at 110 volts kills because it causes this condition of fibrillating heart, and is the reason why electrical accidents in the home are so often fatal. Household "hot spots" are the kitchen, bathroom and cellar, because wet skin is much less resistant to electricity than dry skin.

Resistance to electric shock apparently varies from one individual to another. Rats most sensitive to small amounts of electricity have the greatest resistance to electric shock.

Alternating current at low voltages is much more dangerous than direct current at the same low voltage. The reverse is true of high voltage currents. Direct current is the more dangerous at the high voltages.

Mainly about WOMEN

Away With Those Romantic Illusions!

JACK Anthony of New York has a unique profession: he salvages unions which would otherwise end in the divorce court. He is director of the Marital Relations Institute in New York, which gives pre-marital and marital advice to thousands of men and women. Anthony entered his profession quite by accident. Some years ago, he untangled a marital knot for a relative.

"The couple seemed beyond the point of reconciliation. I discussed the matter with both of them and discovered what the trouble was. The man was the typical masterful male. He thought he should be lord of his household, the supreme authority whose word could not be questioned. His wife was intelligent and spirited.

"My task was to make the husband realise that she was a human being, like himself, and that she had a right to her opinions, though they might differ from his. I told him his conception of life died a hundred years ago. Eventually I was able to convince him, and they were reconciled.

"Because I have some ability to comprehend divergent attitudes, I found myself in demand, more and more, as an adviser to married couples. Two years ago, I founded this organization, with a psychiatrist and a physician on my staff. My mail comes from all parts of the world."

A woman from a remote corner of the world writes to him: "I believe there should be institutions similar to this, one in every large city. I also believe that, whenever possible, couples should keep out of the courts. Litigation leaves a scar—a deep scar which sometimes never heals. If children are involved, the parents should make every effort to keep the family together." Yet, contrary to the general belief, children do not bind marriage ties any tighter. Some 100,000 children are affected every year by divorce.

Anthony, happily married himself, has studied both law and psychology. He has lectured before women's clubs, colleges, universities, and other institutions in 33 States. Following a speech he delivered at Boston University, a special course in marital relationships was inaugurated! And in his files he has 3,400 case histories on which he bases his own theories about marriage and divorce. Take note, then, of what Anthony has to say about marriage and romantic illusions!

He wants the mysticism taken out of marriage: he caters to Mr. and Mrs. Everyman. "The average union based on love," he says, "goes through four stages.

"First, of course, there is the fine ecstatic flush of mutual passion. That fades, inevitably, and a period of adjustment follows. Next comes a feeling of pure friendship which progresses to a mature relationship, combining love, passion and friendship.

Heather, the 10-months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalziel, is capable of intense curiosity, like all her sex, as the above photograph shows.

years the limit, and 3 per cent. favoured 10 years, 18 per cent. gave themselves five years, and 6 per cent. thought two years would be quite enough.

As propagators of the race, men far exceed women in their desires, if Anthony's questionnaire is a true index, for 82 per cent. of the men answered the query, "Do you expect to raise a family?" in the affirmative, while only 21 per cent. of the women said "yes."

Every Thinking Woman buys 'Ovaltine' for Health

The well-being of her children, and of every member of her family, is what every thinking woman holds most precious. It must never be left to chance. No other consideration will weigh with her like the certainty of good health.

It is for this reason that 'Ovaltine' is the established food beverage in the majority of homes throughout the world. Experience has proven that 'Ovaltine' is unequalled as the daily beverage for maintaining vigorous health, and as a "night-cap" for ensuring sound, natural sleep. Moreover, it is the food beverage most widely recommended by doctors everywhere.

During the day take 'Ovaltine' Cold—all Hotels and Cafes serve it—it gives that added nourishment necessary to restore the vitality so quickly sapped by the heat.

For the Beach a thermos flask of 'Ovaltine' Cold, packed in the tiffin basket, will be welcomed by all.

Yet, contrary to the general belief, children do not bind marriage ties any tighter. Some 100,000 children are affected every year by divorce.

"Unfortunately, the romantic illusions fostered by popular belief do not prepare the average husband or wife for such a course of events. Many of them actually expect the first flush of love to continue indefinitely. But human nature makes that impossible. And there we have one reason for the prevalence of divorce."

What reasons do Mr. and Mrs. Everyman give for marrying? Anthony sent out a questionnaire and 13,000 women and 5,000 men answered the question. Mr. and Mrs. Everyman have, in America at any rate, become somewhat surprisingly pessimistic.

Only 9 per cent. answered the query, "Why are you marrying?" Of these, only 1 per cent. said, "To bear children." But 56 per cent. said they were marrying for love and 23 per cent. said, "for security."

Few appeared to believe in the fairy-tale ending, "They lived happily together ever after." Only 34 per cent. thought that their marriages would last forever; 15 per cent. considered 20

About TOWN

If anything can be said to be of primary interest to a community it is surely its defence by sea and land. In spite of all appearances to the contrary, that is as true of Hong Kong as of any other place. It is true that there may often be plans that would be defeated by publicity, and as we do not pay for more than about 10 per cent. of the cost of defence, it may be argued that we have a claim only to the same proportion of information. But the re-housing of the garrison and the provision of manoeuvre space and all the minor adjustments involved do not seem very confidential, and there is no reason why new arrangements should be surreptitious.

Parliamentary Worm Turns

WE are very ready to criticise the sudden ascendancy in Japan of the militarist section led by General Araki, but it is quite in order for the War Department in London sometimes to insist on putting through votes that would be promptly rejected if they were submitted by any other Department. This appears to have been what happened in the matter of the new barracks in Hong Kong. Three years ago a vote was put through, but not spent, whether owing to a Treasury veto or a change of policy we know not. Next year another vote of nearly double the amount had the same fate.

The current estimates have a vote for the same purpose on a reduced scale. The Budget Committee has passed it, but has evidently grown tired of the part of "Yes-man," in complete ignorance of what the War Office policy is, and why the cost of barracks should fluctuate by 50 or 100 per cent., and the opportunity has been taken of adding a reprimand, to the effect that a variation of £1,250,000 is not justified by the alteration of the scheme in detail. It is not often that such a remark is appended, but it can hardly be called surprising.

The Hong Kong Side

IT is English money and it may be said that the expenditure is entirely an English concern. But the expenditure of approximately £2,000,000 in the Colony is a very exceptional event. It would mean a godsend to many firms of contractors and purveyors of all descriptions, and the circulation of the additional cash would give a fillip to local business that would tide us over the lean years that are so slow to end. Is it not natural that we should be rather curious to know what the alterations of the scheme have been and why they were made? It is apparently not considered that Hong Kong could have made any useful suggestions, or that any saving could have been made by giving such information as would enable local firms to make timely preparations. The Hong Kong resident has fewer political rights than we usually realise, but there does not seem to be any reason why there should not be frank information about business matters.

The Washington Convention

THE scheme for better accommodation of the troops stationed here is excellent on its own merits, for in a hot climate any man engaged in the service of his country has a right to the most spacious and airy housing and to all the other accessories of health that can be provided. A sick soldier is a contradiction in terms. But the probability is that the present quarters would have been thought adequate for years to come but for the lapse of the Washington Convention, which included Hong Kong in the area where no additional fortification was to be made. The Treaty, of course, lapses at the end of this year, and the new agreement with the United States is very much less extensive—in fact, what with the refusal of Japan to come in even to a "qualitative" limit and the "escalator" clause, which enables the signatories to exceed the limit for good cause shown, it is very doubtful whether the document was worth signing. It may be inferred therefore that the intention is to take Hong Kong seriously as an advanced naval base; and that will imply a good deal of further expenditure on the naval votes—for which provision has been made. Locally one must reconcile oneself to the prospect that the Defence Contribution will not be reconsidered in this generation with a view to any reduction, and we shall be lucky to escape an increase if prosperity comes again.

The Shanghai Garrison

IT was stated in Parliament when this vote was under discussion a year ago that it was proposed to station the troops now lying at Shanghai, which were kept there "merely because there was no accommodation at Hong Kong," in the Colony. One wonders whether that is the permanent policy, advisedly adopted. The British commercial interests in Shanghai are at least as big as in Hong Kong and the chances of troops being called upon for duty are considerably bigger. One of the Japanese demands is for a separate concession similar to the French. The position of British troops there without freedom of access by sea has to be considered, but a Shanghai completely defenceless, even against riot, is not a cheering prospect. Never was there a time when a clear statement of policy promised better effect than now.

SECRET FRENCH GUN

Allegedly Furnished To Soviet

RIGHT-WING DEPUTY REBUKED IN CHAMBER

Paris, Yesterday. The vote arising from the opposition Interpellation against the Government, alleging that the latter furnished the Soviet with plans for a secret aircraft gun, resulted in confidence being voted in the Government by 378 votes to 10.

The gun mentioned is reported to be able to fire 800 shots a minute, and was invented by a Swiss working for a private firm. Only six exist. — Reuter.

QUERY IN CHAMBER

Paris: The alleged delivery to the Soviet Union of the latest French invention for aerial warfare, a new quick-firing gun for aeroplanes, projecting small calibre shells at a rate of 800 per minute, was the subject of an interpellation in the Chamber yesterday by the Right-wing Deputy M. Kerellis, who asserted that the French Air Minister had delivered a sample of this weapon to Soviet Russia, although the weapon was still secret and being tested, while samples of similar, though not so efficient, guns had been given to England and Czechoslovakia. The Air Minister, M. Cot, answered that he had not given the order to have the sample sent, for the simple reason that he had no sample.

The Air Minister then criticised M. Kerellis for bringing a debate of such a nature into the Chamber, declaring that the Chamber was not the place for the Air Ministry to discuss its technical matters. He did not accuse M. Kerellis of treasonable conduct, but thought that the outcome of such a debate could have been foreseen. People would now believe that a military alliance existed between France and the Soviet Union, while he had already stated that it did not exist. — Trans-Ocean Service.

Pleasure Steamer Struck

SOUTH COAST TOWNS FLOODED

London, Yesterday. During an exceptionally severe storm which broke over the Sussex coast yesterday lightning struck the pleasure steamer "Brighton Belle" and the mast was damaged. Captain Smith, who was on the bridge, and the wireless operator were knocked down and suffered burns about the face and neck. None of the passengers is reported injured, and as most of them were taking shelter from the heavy downpour they were unaware of the fact that the vessel had been struck.

Among the South coast towns which felt the full force of the storm Eastbourne suffered the most. It is reported that during one hour nearly two inches of rain fell. The streets and many shops and houses were flooded, firemen being called in to pump the water from the flooded premises.

Heavy rain and hailstorms visited London and other parts of Southern England later in the day. — British Wireless Service.

Water Famine Threat In New York State

FOREST FIRES ADD TO TRIBULATIONS

New York, Yesterday. Nearly all the United States, save Northern New England, continued to swelter yesterday in record-breaking heat. It is estimated that light rainfall may occur in the North-western States to-morrow, but there is no sign of rain elsewhere.

As the thermometer reached 97 yesterday afternoon Mayor LaGuardia ordered all the employees of New York City except firemen and the police to leave work for the remainder of the day in order to decrease the cases of prostration, which were numerous among all office workers. About 100,000 workers on public relief were also sent home after many had collapsed.

A serious water famine threatens New York State, the Health department of which has ordered an immediate curtailment of the use of water. By midday yesterday the national deaths from the heat totalled 303. Forest fires have ruined thousands of acres, and the crop and cattle losses have mounted towards fabulous sums.

570,000 FARMS RAVAGED Washington: President Roosevelt announced to a press conference yesterday that 75,000 jobs had been authorised in the drought area, and 16,500 men were already working. Altogether more than 570,000 farms have been ravaged by the drought.

DEATHROLL MOUNTING New York, later: The deathroll in the heat-wave is now 375. One of the victims was Joe Humphries, the well-known Madison Square Garden prize-fight announcer, who has died of a heart attack owing to the heat. He claimed that he had introduced every heavyweight boxing champion since John L. Sullivan. — Reuter.

RECORD FLIGHT ABANDONED

Defect In Wings Of Machine

Vienna, Yesterday. Lord Sempill has abandoned his attempt on the record for the flight to Australia, it is understood, owing to a defect in connection with the wings of his machine, and has decided to return to London immediately.

It was found that the fabric of the wings had cracked, making a long-distance flight unsafe. The damage has been temporarily repaired and Lord Sempill is flying back to England to-night. — Reuter.

An earlier London message stated that Lord Sempill left Hanworth Aerodrome at four o'clock yesterday afternoon with three companions in an attempt to fly to Melbourne in a schedule of less than 70 flying hours. Lord Sempill was flying a "Cresson" monoplane, "Croydon" 10-seater monoplane, which is Britain's fastest air liner and has a cruising speed of 190 miles an hour and a top speed of 210. — British Wireless Service.

NEW ATTEMPT Later: Lord Sempill took off at 2.30 a.m. for London. He told Reuter that he would have the damage repaired in London and would then immediately make a new attempt. — Reuter.

P. I. MINING INDUSTRY ASSURED OF FAIR TAX, STATES ASSEMBLYMAN

THE address made by President Manuel L. Quezon to members of the Assembly on the opening day of the current session, insofar as he referred to taxes to be levied on the mining industry of the Philippines, has, without any doubt, been grossly misunderstood, and has caused no small amount of anxiety and alarm among the investors who hold shares in mining companies, writes Assemblyman Pedro Sabido in the June 19 issue of the Philippine Financial News.

There is absolutely no reason for alarm. I believe, and without fear of contradiction, that the President tried to convey to the Assembly that what he really meant in his message was the fact that present taxes levied on the gold mining industry were low when compared to those taxes paid by the industry in other parts of the world. I believe that this point will be granted by all members of the Assembly as well as that part of the public which is interested in the mining industry.

RUBBER MARKET

Singapore Report For Week Ending July 3

HIGHER PRICES MAINTAINED

Messrs. Ellis and Edgar have received from their Singapore agents the following market for the week ending—July 3, 1936.

The higher prices indicated last week have been fully maintained. — London has given the lead with good continental and trade demand, and in New York both dealers and outside interests have shown more activity. American factory buying is not as much in evidence as might have been expected from the manner in which the stocks are decreasing. It is felt that manufacturers may not have bought up to their full requirements.

The official bulletin of the International Rubber Regulation Committee gives world stocks at May 31, 1936, as 410,116 tons, a reduction of 31,539 tons compared to April. Afloat at 89,000 tons is up 60,000 tons on the previous month. So that the net reduction in the visible world stocks is 25,529 tons.

Consumption in the United States of America for June is estimated to have been over 50,000 tons and July consumption is expected to be also near this mark. Stocks in the United Kingdom decreased by 4,666 tons during the fortnight June 18 to 29.

Shipments from Malaya in June were 40,049 tons, bringing the (Continued at foot of preceding Column.)

KUOMINTANG FACES NEW CRISIS

BLACK-GOWNED CHINESE BELIEVED ASSASSIN

SHOOTING OCCURS IN CHINESE TERRITORY

Shanghai Yesterday.

The Hongkew district was transformed into an armed camp last night as a sequel to the attempted murder of a Japanese business man named Kosaku Kayau, who was shot and seriously injured by an unidentified person. A heavy force of Japanese bluejackets, wearing steel helmets and with their bayonets fixed, were rushed out of the barracks and are patrolling the area on foot, motor-cycles and lorries. Two blue-jacket motor-cyclists, going at full speed, were critically injured as the result of a head-on collision with a motor-car.

Kayau was carrying a neighbour's child in his arms and was leading another by the hand. Neither was injured. About 30 or 40 Chinese coolies sleeping on the pavements nearby have been rounded up for questioning.

Later: Kayau, aged 32, was wounded in the head and admitted to hospital. He is not expected to recover. The motor-cyclists, mentioned earlier, came into collision at the scene of the shooting with a motor-car driven by a British subject, Mr. C. N. Brooke, an official of the Chinese Customs.

Later: Kayau died in hospital at 1.05 a.m.

Shanghai, Later: British police officers went to the scene and are co-operating with the Chinese police and the Japanese Consular and naval authorities in investigating the affair, which occurred on Chinese territory adjoining the International Settlement. A Japanese woman heard a muffled report and turned and saw Kayau collapse in the street, but there was no sign of the assailant.

The shooting was followed by the usual Japanese warning to the Chinese authorities, who were urged to do their utmost to apprehend the culprit and also to "provide better protection for Japanese nationals in the future."

NEW FRICTION

Later: The Kayau incident has created a fresh source of Sino-Japanese friction, just when the Kuomintang has assembled at Nanking to discuss the means of appeasing the South-west's demand for war against Japan. It is hoped that the incident will be localised so as to avoid embarrassing the Nanking Government's efforts to compose the internal differences.

A Japanese passer-by declares that he heard two shots and saw a black-gowned Chinese, who rushed past, turned and fired at him without effect. He gave chase, but the man disappeared in an alley-way. — Reuter.

STEAM LAUNDRY CO. NOW BEST EQUIPPED IN THE FAR EAST

Zoric Garment Cleaning System Is Installed

EFFECTS ALREADY BEING FELT BY FAIR SEX

AUTOMATIC TREATMENT LEAVES NOTHING TO BE DESIRED

DIRTY GARMENTS BECOME UNBELIEVABLY CLEAN

(By A Special Correspondent)

EVER alert to the requirements of its huge clientele, the Steam Laundry Company have just installed the Zoric Garment Cleaning System in their works at Kowloon and, though this has only been in operation for about a month, the benefits of this, the most modern dry-cleaning system to be used in China, have already been admired by many of their clients, more especially by members of the fair sex, whose silk frocks and other delicate garments are renewed with the maximum of speed and are returned none the worse for having been put through the Zoric dry-cleaning machine.

I called at the Works at Mongkok in the course of the week and, though the genial manager, Mr. W. W. Hirst, was busy at his work, he nevertheless found time to conduct me on a tour of inspection throughout the premises and also to give me a demonstration of the Zoric Garment Cleaning System.

Ladies' evening and day gowns, men's wear, loose covers, blankets, etc., were there all in separate lots. From amongst these clothes several palm beach suits were taken to make up a 21 lb. load which was placed in the machine, and the Zoric System started. It not only does the cleaning but also the drying as well, and in less than half an hour this load was "discharged" without a speck on it. In other words, as good as new! Included in the pile was a felt hat which was completely transformed from a shabby object into something unbelievably clean. Not the slightest trace of odour remained and the garments were absolutely fresh and clean!

The Zoric Garment Cleaning System has been installed by the Steam Laundry Company at a cost of many thousands of dollars in order that the public may have what is believed to be the finest and most up-to-date dry-cleaning system ever developed and offered. I understand that this plant is the only one of its kind in the Far East. The Zoric Garment Cleaning System is an entirely new and revolutionary method of dry-cleaning and it uses a synthetic cleaning solvent of the very highest quality called "Zoric Fluid." This synthetic cleaning solvent is absolutely harmless to the most delicate fabrics, and, being chemical-pure and free from any oils and greases, it ensures clothing staying clean much longer, because no oily film is left on the garment to collect dirt. The fluid is absolutely non-inflammable.

The system produces the highest quality of cleaning because the most effective cleaning fluid known to science is used lavishly for each cleaning, and ladies in particular will be interested to learn that it gives silks a wonderful lustre.

After treatment the colours are bright, while woollen fabrics and fur trimmings remain soft and delightful to the touch. The fluid penetrates every thread in every fabric. And, best of all, it leaves no odour.

BEST SUITED PLANT

Mr. W. W. Hirst explained that the Zoric Garment Cleaning System is the ultimate result of his tour of England and America six months ago, during the course of which he had the opportunity of visiting the great dry-cleaning works in both countries and studying the systems employed in both places, and it was only after careful consideration that he arrived at the conclusion that the Zoric Garment Cleaning system would be most suited to the Colony's needs.

Leaving the department where the Zoric Garment Cleaning System is operated, an inspection of the other parts of the Steam Laundry showed that the rigid discipline and orderliness, which is the big feature of the new system, also obtained in the other departments.

There are over three hundred employees in the Laundry, and each man or woman has a special task to attend to, and it is because the staff realises that nothing but the best is expected of them that this gigantic business is operated so smoothly.

After the washing, each garment is put through the presses, which vary in size, while, in addition to these, there are fifty hand gas irons, operated by skilled workmen.

HUGE P & O ORDER

It is perhaps not generally known that, apart from being contractors to all the Government hospitals in the Colony as well as to the Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels Ltd., the Steam Laundry are also contractors to the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company. In a special room on the premises are hundreds of packages, each one carefully labelled, ready for despatch at a moment's notice, and it speaks well for the efficiency and high standard of the work of the Steam Laundry Company when one pauses to think that from the moment one of the P. and O. liners begin to steam down the River Thames, till the time she ties up at the buoy or wharf in the harbour, all the dirty linen is stored away in order that it may be sent to the Steam Laundry for washing when the vessel arrives in Hong Kong!

MUFTIS WIN AT POLO FUSILIERS FARE BADLY TOURNAMENT CONCLUDED

MR. FIELDEN OUTSTANDING
PLAYER ON VIEW

The Muftis secured an easy victory over the Royal Welch Fusiliers in the final match of the High Handicap American Polo Tournament on the Boundary Street ground yesterday, when they won by 10 goals to 5 after conceding a four goals' handicap to the losers.

The outstanding feature of the game was the splendid display by Mr. Fielden, who, playing in the back position, No. 4, repeatedly saved his charge and sent many fine shots up the field.

Mr. Newbigging, as No. 3, was also in fine form and his excellent positioning told its tale in the scoring, while Mr. Palmer and Mr. Stanton were also in fine form.

As a result of the Muftis winning yesterday's encounter, the Nomads, by virtue of their wins over the Muftis and the Fusiliers, have won the tournament.

Fusiliers' Poor Display
The Fusiliers were in very poor form yesterday and, despite their handicap of four goals, they were unable to score until the fourth and last chukker, and even then it was only through a penalty (40 yards) free hit.

Lieut. Parker-Jervis, the Fusiliers' No. 3, worked like a Trojan throughout, but his impetuosity cost him several scoring chances and he threw away at least three open goals through faulty hitting. Lieut. Kelly worked hard, but Capt. Whitaker's mount gave him trouble throughout the match, although it easily outpaced the Muftis' ponies.

Four Quick Goals
Mr. Stanton opened the scoring soon after the start of the first chukker, and Mr. Palmer scored the Muftis' second, following good play by Mr. Newbigging. Mr. Palmer scored his second and the Muftis' third soon afterwards, and this was followed by a fine ride by Lieut. Parker-Jervis, who failed to score, however, from a good position. Just before the end Mr. Newbigging added the Muftis' fourth goal.

The second chukker saw Mr. Stanton deflect a 60-yard free hit by Mr. Newbigging between the posts to secure the lead. Mr. Fielden then followed up a splendid clearance by Mr. Newbigging and scored the Muftis' sixth goal and Mr. Stanton added the seventh after a ride through from the half-way mark.

Mr. Fielden and Mr. Palmer added two more goals before the end of the third chukker, the latter's shot being from 70 yards.

Fusiliers Score

The fourth and last chukker saw the Fusiliers make a furious rally and soon after Mr. Palmer had failed to score for the Muftis from a good position, Lieut. Parker-Jervis rode through, but was fouled. He made up for it by scoring their only goal from a 40-yard penalty hit.

Soon afterwards Mr. Fielden rode across his line, but Lieut. Parker-Jervis failed with his second penalty shot.

The closing minutes were very exciting, Mr. Fielden securing the honours of the day with a brilliant goal, the best of the day. Securing the ball from a clearance across the Muftis' goalmouth by Mr. Newbigging, Mr. Fielden gathered the ball in his stride from the tail end of the boards and took it the length of the field to score with a fine backhand shot.

Just before the end Lieut. Parker-Jervis broke through on Mr. Fielden's blind side, but failed to convert a "sitter."

The teams were:—
Muftis:—
H'cap.—Nil
Mr. L. J. A. Fielden
Mr. D. L. Newbigging
Mr. J. J. Palmer
Mr. W. T. Stanton

Goal-scorers:—Mr. Fielden (8), Mr. Newbigging (1), Mr. Palmer (3) and Mr. Stanton (3).

WATER-POLO WIN FOR CHINESE

Stonecutters Lose To Athletic

A large number of members of the Chinese Athletic Association, as well as many of their friends, gathered at their bathing pavilion, at North Point last night to watch the water-polo match between the Association and a team representing Stonecutters' Island, the game ending in a win for the home team by 3 goals to 1.

It was not till after about half-way through the initial half that the Chinese scored through Chiu. Stonecutters then monopolised the play and their efforts were finally rewarded when Wood equalised just before the interval.

After the change-over, the Chinese asserted their superiority, and, aided by the fact that Stonecutters were paying too much attention to their respective wards, instead of the ball, were given some fine opportunities to score, and they accordingly added to their total through Yeung and Lo.

Chinese Athletics:—Moi Che-cheung, Wong Sun-mai, Ng Kam-chuen, Lam Yau-ting, Chiu Chuk-yau, Lo Wai-ken, Yeung Man-kit.
Stonecutters:—L/Tel. Fassey, L/Tel. Lee, Gnr. Forsyth, Gnr. Roscoe, Gnr. Halliday, Sig. Banham, Tel. Wood.

IMPERSONATION OF A POLICEMAN

Dresser From Canton
Fined

ATTEMPTED VICTIMISATION OF DOCTOR

Leung Kwok, aged 22, a dresser of the Canton Military Hospital, was yesterday morning fined $100, in default two months' hard labour, by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy when he was found guilty of impersonating a police officer at No. 4, Caroline Road on June 6.

Wong Che-to, the complainant, a Chinese doctor, stated that on the day in question, at about 10 a.m., the defendant called at his place, where he was attending to some patients. When asked what he wanted defendant said that he had come from the Police station and wanted to speak to complainant. Ten minutes later, when the other patients had gone, the defendant said that he had come round to check up the registration of doctors and asked if complainant was registered. When asked where the registration was done, defendant said it was at the Central Police station, but, if desired, he would attend to it and thus save the complainant some money by avoiding the necessity of registration through the clerks.

Asked for proof of his identity, defendant then produced a Silver Jubilee celebration medal. The complainant was able to read a little English and then asked the defendant the cost of registration, but defendant hesitated about the amount.

The complainant then sent his sister to call the Police and defendant was arrested. A Chinese constable gave corroboratory evidence.

Detective-Sergeant C. Dowman was in charge of the case.

RELAPSE OF FRANC

Exchange Circles
Puzzled

London, Yesterday.

The sudden relapse of the franc in terms of sterling, after a period of comparative firmness, is at present puzzling the foreign exchange interests. Some are inclined to attribute the reaction to a feeling of extreme nervousness regarding the outcome of the Finance Minister's Baby Bond venture, pointing out that M. Vincent Auriol virtually admitted that the failure of the issue would entail drastic measures, even possibly devaluation.

On the contrary, others are of the opinion that the present is too early to judge how the issue is faring, and are more inclined to attribute the easiness of the franc to technical causes in connection with the two-day holiday occasioned by the July 14 celebrations.—Reuter.

Mr. H. Lange, of the Transocean News Service, was also present as a guest. The hosts were represented by Messrs. Schroeder, Manager, and Ritter, of Hong Kong, and Mr. Embden, of the Canton branch.

History Of The Company

During the course of the evening Mr. Wohlfahrt gave a most interesting and instructive address on precision-camera and outlined the history of the Zeiss-Ikon Company, which was formed in 1926 by the merging of four other concerns, Ica, Endemann (makers of cinema projectors), Goerz and Contessa-Nettel. The last-named, of which Mr. Wohlfahrt was originally the managing director, was founded 32 years ago and began business with 12 workmen.

On Friday

MRS. AMY MOLLISON
FORCED TO RETIRE

London, Yesterday.
The leading British airmen piloted 26 machines yesterday while competing in the eliminating contest for the King's Cup air race. The competitors were divided into three groups, according to engine-power, and the qualifiers will take part in the final, which is being flown to-day, over a 312-mile course, starting and finishing at Hatfield and passing through Norwich, Nottingham, Bristol, Shoreham and Coventry.

Most of the competitors encountered stormy weather and those who were forced to retire included Mrs. Amy Mollison and Captain Hope, three times winner of the cup. The fastest time recorded was by the Duke of Kent's Percival Gull, piloted by Capt. E. W. Percival, which averaged 171.75 miles an hour.

In addition to this machine the 14 which qualified included Lord Wakefield's T.K.2, piloted by Mr. R. J. Wright, Lady Wakefield's Miles Hawk, piloted by Flight-Lieutenant Tommy Rose, the Marquess of Londonderry's Percival Gull, piloted by Mr. Falk, and Mr. C. W. A. Scott's Miles Falcon, piloted by himself.—Reuter.

CLOSE FINISHES

London: The Duke of Kent's aeroplane, piloted by Captain Percival, was the first to arrive at Hatfield on completion of the eliminating contest for the King's Cup Air Race. The machine is a "Percival New Gull" and had led throughout. Its average speed was 171 miles per hour, including two stops of 30 minutes. Later Mr. D. Humble's "Miles Hawk," which was the second machine to finish the course, arrived, and he was followed closely by Mr. R. J. Wright in Lord Wakefield's "T.K. 2," which had an average of 162 miles per hour. Immediately afterwards Mr. Tommy Rose, in Lady Wakefield's "Miles Hawk," passed over the line.

Better Conditions For Final

London, last night.
The flying conditions for the final stage of the King's Cup Air Race to-day showed a great improvement on those of yesterday, when competitors encountered thunder, low clouds, mist and heavy rain. There were fourteen starters in the pylon racing final, consisting of 12 circuits of a 26-mile triangular course. It was a handicap event, in which constant cornering told against faster machines.—British Wireless Service.

The talk was illustrated with a moving picture of the Company's works.
From Hong Kong Mr. Wohlfahrt is travelling to Ball, Java, the Straits Settlements and India, flying back to Germany from Calcutta.

UDO AND ARAI IN GREAT FORM

2 MINS. 12 SECS. AVERAGE
OVER 200 METRES

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Olympic Village, Berlin,
Yesterday.

When the Japanese Olympic swimmers first began practice here the responsible trainer, Mr. Matsawata, astonished everybody by declaring that their intention was to lower the world's record for the four-time 200 metres relay race of 8 minutes 58.4 seconds, established by the Japanese team at the Olympic Games at Los Angeles in 1932 and since considered unbeatable. Mr. Matsawata aimed at 8 minutes 48 seconds, that is an average for each man in the relay of 2 minutes 12 seconds.

In a practice yesterday Udo did the 200 metres in 2 minutes 10.2 seconds, and Arai in 2 minutes 9.6 seconds. As all the rest of the Japanese swimmers are in good form the Japanese chances of achieving their aim and winning this event are very bright.—Trans-Ocean Service.

SYNDICATE CALLS STOPPAGE
FOR FETE NATIONALE

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Paris, Yesterday.

Considerable anxiety has been caused here by the action of the syndicate of agricultural labourers, which has requested all its members to go on strike on July 14 if the same concessions have not been made to them beforehand that have already been granted to industrial workers.

It is stated that the Government and the farmers alike take the view that since the conditions prevailing in agriculture, especially at harvest time, are entirely different from those obtaining in industry, a settlement along such lines would be impossible, but the syndicate in question persists in its decision to call an agricultural strike unless its demands are conceded.—Trans-Ocean Service.

BRITISH TROOPS IN ACTION

ANOTHER CLASH
AT NABLUS

Jerusalem, Yesterday.

A bomb was thrown yesterday in the precincts of the police headquarters of the city, but little damage was suffered. The sniping continued during Thursday night and a private of the British forces was slightly injured when snipers fired on a village in which he was patrolling.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Later: After an ambush of an omnibus convoy between Jenin and Nablus, in which two British soldiers were slightly injured and one Jew killed and two seriously hurt, troops were rushed from Jenin and Nablus and engaged the insurgents, of whom four are stated to have been killed and one captured. It is believed that several were wounded.—Reuter.

QUEEN'S PLACE IN OLD CHINA REGARDED AS MOTHER OF HER PEOPLE WHOLE LIFE REGULATED BY ANCIENT RITUAL

(By PHYLLIS JUBY)

WHILE the Son of Heaven worked to secure harmony in all external affairs, seeing that the states were properly governed, it fell to the Queen to establish the internal harmony, and regulation of the families by instructing the inmates of the harem in the domestic and private rule which should prevail throughout the kingdom, and how the deferential obedience of the wife should be illustrated. Therefore it was said, "From the Son of Heaven there were learned the lessons for men and, from the Queen, the obedience proper to women."

The Son of Heaven, by guiding in all that affected the external administration of affairs, directed the course to be pursued by the masculine energies; the Queen, by the ordering of the family, regulated the virtues to be cultivated by the feminine receptivities. Thus, the manners and ways of the people abroad and at home being perfected, harmony and natural order prevailed. And this was called "the condition of perfect virtue." The Son of Heaven, by attending to the lessons for men, performed the functions of the father; the Queen, by attending to the obedience proper to women, performed the functions of the mother. So it was said, "The Son of Heaven and the Queen are to the people what father and mother are."

That-zan, a Queen long remembered, lived according to the rites and was entirely virtuous. She gave birth to "our King Wan," and began, it is said, the instruction of the child while he was still in her womb, "looking on no improper sight, listening to no licentious sound, uttering no word of pride." And more: "She inherited her excellent fame, and from her came a hundred sons." She herself had only ten, but her freedom from jealousy encouraged the fruitfulness of the harem. Gentle and good, she caused harmony to prevail and the women rejoiced to bear children.

According to the rites, the Queen divided the inmates of the harem into four groups, or five if she herself be included, for she stood alone. These groups, unequal in size, were also unequal in importance, but in the opposite sense. The royal concubines had less nobility when they belonged to a bigger group and were thus more distant from their lord. There were 81 women of the fifth rank, 27 of the fourth rank, 9 of the third rank, 3 of the second, the Queen alone sharing the intrinsic value of the Emperor. According to the custom of the red tube, the least noble of the royal concubines approached their master at the beginning and the end of the lunar month. When the time came for them to visit the apartment of the Emperor, the Queen gave them a ring of silver which was worn on the right hand. After their visit it was changed to the left hand. The women of the third and fourth rank were allotted nights more central, and to the 3 women of the second rank belonged the fourteenth and sixteenth nights, coming close to the holy night when the moon, all round, faces the sun. It was during that unique night, the whole night, that the Queen herself remained alone in the presence of the unique Man.

But when the Queen was not virtuous, when the obedience proper to women was not cultivated, the feminine phenomena in nature did not proceed regularly. In some such cases the moon was eclipsed. Then the Queen was required to dress herself in plain white robes and proceed to repair what was wrong in the duties of the six palace halls, purifying everything that belonged to the feminine sphere throughout the kingdom.

In the proper relation, the Son of Heaven was to the Queen what the sun is to the moon, or the masculine energy of nature to the feminine. They were necessary to each other, fulfilling their functions by their interdependence. But should the Queen, not content with her more secluded life, seek to gain great influence over the Emperor, disorder would surely follow. And disorder in government, it was firmly believed, threw nature into confusion. In an unnatural way the Yin would come to oppress the Yang, the earth would shake, springs dry up and parched mountains crumble away. In sacrificing, the Queen had duties to which she personally was expected to attend. There is an Ode in praise of the industry and reverence of a Prince's wife.

"Where streams among the valleys shine,
Of southernwood she plucks the white;
And brings it to the sacred shrine,
To aid our prince in solemn rite.
In head-dress high, most reverent, she
The temple seeks at early dawn.
The service o'er, the head-dress see
To her own chamber slow withdrawn."

Among her duties was the care of the silkworms, "to provide the cap and robes of silk." She tended the silkworms herself to give proof of her personal sincerity; thus, doing her utmost, she showed her reverence and was able to serve the Spiritual Intelligences.

In the last month of Spring the cooling doves clapped their wings about the mulberry trees and silk-worm oaks, and the crested birds alighted on them. Then the trays and baskets with stands for the worms and cocoons were got ready. The Queen, after vigil and fasting, went in person to the eastern fields to work on the mulberry trees. She ordered the wives and younger women of the palace not to wear their ornamental dresses, and to suspend their women's work, thus stimulating them to attend to their business with the worms. She apportioned the cocoons, and afterwards weighed out the silk on which the women were to work to supply the robes for the great religious services and for use in the ancestral temple. The Queen herself was to have silk robes richly ornate: blue or black silk robes ornamented with pheasants of various colours, or white silk robes "in which the scissors had cut figures of pheasants."

Later on the Queen gave orders on the subject of dyeing. The women were to see that the white and black, the black and green, the green and carnation, the carnation and white be all according to the ancient rules, without error or change; and that their black, yellow, azure, and carnation, be all genuine and good, without any presumptuous attempts at imposition. These not only furnished the materials for the robes, but for the flags and their ornaments, and for marking the different degrees of rank as high or low.

The second month of Spring was the month of the swallow. On the day of its arrival, the Queen, with nine wives of the second rank and all the other royal ladies, accompanied the Son of Heaven to the south of the capital to offer sacrifices to Kao Mei, the Supreme Intermediary. The Queen and wives of lesser rank accepted a ceremonial gift, a cup of wine, and then cases of arrows were brought and bows and arrows, betokening male children, were presented to the women before Kao Mei.

The theme, one must admit, is anything but a cheerful one, but it has been so cleverly and effectively handled both by composer and artists that its magical charm becomes irresistible.

"GLOOMY SUNDAY" Three Gramophone Versions

SONG WHICH HAS SWEEPED

"Sombre Dimanche"—"Gloomy Sunday"—is a tragic little song from the City of Vienna . . . . . city of dreams, of life and laughter and dramatic interlude.

A young man, a student, conceives a mad passion for a Viennese beauty. His waking hours are devoted to the thought of her, and his dreams become a nightmare of thwarted possession. His work is laid aside. He seeks to escape the friendship of his companions. The daily round becomes an annoyance. Hot-headed, temperamental, hopelessly infatuated, he falls victim to alternate periods of despondency and joy. There is no escape from the poison which has entered his veins.

At long last a meeting is arranged with the beloved. The appointed day is a Sunday . . . a fateful Sunday.

A Lost Cause

Dawn brings glamour to that roof-top dwelling. It brings, too, long hours of feverish waiting. It brings crushing disappointment with the realization that the rendezvous has been forgotten, ignored. The cause, then, is a lost one. The day ends in a frenzy of despair. The mad decision is taken to bring life to an end, but before taking that final leap into the dark, this grief-laden message is composed.

A simple story, perhaps, a tragedy enacted as often as there are days in the year. But the song, you will agree, with its graceful welding of words and music, is anything but an occurrence of everyday artistic effort.

Now for the song itself, first by Costa Barleaza who, with his Tzigane Orchestra, hails from that same mad, gay centre of musical activity, Vienna. In his hands it becomes a song without words, an impassioned outburst brilliantly portrayed.

Next, an entirely different version by Albert Sandler, the popular English violinist, with Hildegarde, the charming artist, supplying the words. Her style here is simple and restrained, and she succeeds in getting every romantic ounce out of this bitter-sweet conception. (C 262).

Dramatic Version

The third and last version is by Damia, the French star, and is of an exceptionally dramatic and colourful nature. She has the assistance of a choir of Russian voices, which provide a most appropriate background. (C 261).

EXPLANATION OF TO-DAY'S CARTOON

The Father Of Boxing

SAN Bernardino (1380-1444), the jovial and charitable Franciscan monk of Siena, Italy, is responsible for the modern revival of boxing. Europe was then torn between the two factions of the Guelphs and the Ghibellines, and blood was being shed in constant battles. Travelling from place to place, the saintly monk endeavoured by his great eloquence to calm the sanguine strife. He assembled around him a great many youths, who were fascinated by his words. He taught them and prevailed upon them to substitute stabs for swords, and his virtuous and cheerful example thus brought about the revival of pugilism.

BRIDGE NOTES

By Lt.-Col. WALTER BULLER, C.B.E.

Will "Auction" Come Back?

In my recently-published book, "The Buller System" (6d.), I said, "They have tried to kill contract bridge, but they cannot do it."

I fear that this statement may have been optimistic. From all over the world I receive reports of the dissatisfaction caused by convention-mongers, and many players are reverting to auction bridge.

One would suppose that family players and club players could assert themselves, and insist that artificial stunts be barred; but the bulk of the Press in nearly all countries supports the stunt-mongers, and the result is that the ordinary player's protest goes unheeded, and he feels that his only course is to give up the game.

A Rumpus I doubt if "Auction" will solve his difficulties, for, if that game now returns to favour, it is certain that the purveyors of artificial systems will get busy with it.

From Melbourne, Australia, comes the report of a regular rumpus over a deal played in a duplicate match. The hands were: S. K. J. 9, 3, 2. S. A. Q. 10, 6. H. J. 9, 8. H. N. H. D. A. J. 9, 8. A. B. D. A. 8, 7, 4, 3. C. A. 5. C. K. Q. 9, 6.

The bidding went: A (dealer) One Diamond. One Spade. Three Spades. Four No Trumps. Five Clubs. Seven Spades. The grand slam turned out to be a certainty. When A made his bid of "Four No Trumps," B was asked by the opponents whether or not they were playing the 4-5 No Trump convention, and he replied that they were.

Under the terms of this convention, if the partner of the "Four No Trumps" bidder has two Aces, he must bid "Five No Trumps."

A Protest If he fails to do so, he denies the possession of two Aces. It will, therefore, be seen that B's bid of "Five Clubs" was out of order. Nevertheless, although he had denied possession of both Ace of Spades and Ace of Diamonds, A, by his bid of "Seven Spades," evidently put him with both Aces.

A protest was lodged; and the "Decisions" Committee ruled that the "Five Clubs" bid was legitimate, and that it was not necessary to use a conventional response to a recognised system of bidding.

The matter came before the Victorian Bridge Association, whereupon three prominent members of the Committee of that Association resigned as a protest against the decision of their own sub-committee.

I say that no game which is played on these lines, with acrimonious recrimination, protests, and resignations, can last.

Fortunately the 4-5 No Trumps convention, as with every other convention, is worthless, and so far from its being helpful to the card player, it is almost invariably a loser. If only for that reason the public should ban it.

They Refrained An even better reason is that if they do not take action to stop the use of these codes, contract bridge will cease to be played.

In the course of the Committee's discussion the following hand was brought up:—

S. J. 10, x, x
H. J, x
D. K. J, x
C. A, Q, x
S. K, x, x
H. A, Q, x, x
D. A, x
C. x, x, x
S. A, x
H. K, 10, x, x
D. x, x, x
C. K, J, x
S. Q, x, x
H. x, x
D. Q, 10, x
C. 10, x, x

The bidding was (A, B passing)—Y (dealer), "Two Diamonds," Z "The No Trumps," and all pass.

When Y bid "Two Diamonds," A asked, "Are you playing the Forcing Two?" and Y replied, "We have already announced that we are playing Culbertson."

It will be seen that A B have five by cards in hearts, but both refrained from bidding, relying on the undertaking given that when a player of the Approach-Forcing system opens with a "Two" bid, the bidding shall not stop short of game.

A U.S. Rule Z Y were four down, losing only 200, whereas A B, who were vulnerable, could have scored 650.

A leading writer in Australia sees nothing wrong in this. What I say is that, if it is allowed to go on, the game will not survive.

In the States they have introduced a rule that two partners can ask an opponent to leave the table while the other opponent explains what his partner's bid means to him.

At the recent big tournament in New York, the participants were always leaving the room. In the finals, for example, Sam Fry, jun., opened vulnerable with

"Four Spades" on:—
S. K, Q, J, 9, 8, 7, 5.
H. A.
D. J, 10, 3, 2.
C. 8.

He was immediately asked to leave the room, while his partner, B. J. Becker, explained what this "Four" bid meant to him. Becker said he couldn't tell. Fry had never before bid "Four Spades" vulnerable.

The whole game was held up and a protest lodged. A few minutes before, Fry had himself asked one of his opponents to leave the table.

Is this the sort of thing the public want? If not, what are they going to do about it?

It is folly to suppose that it will remain confined to match players. At all games, what is done "at the top" invariably filters through to the public.

In club, and even in family, bridge we shall get the person who, insisting on his rights, will copy these antics, thereby proclaiming himself knowledgeable and "clever." He will be able to point out that it is done by the so-called "masters," and he will have most of the Press on his side.

There is one hope—and one hope only.

It is that the British public will decide to ban any bid which is not capable of a natural interpretation, without prior arrangement, by both partner and opponents. In short, that they will decide to play the game on the lines laid down in my recently published book.

That bidding on these lines makes an infinitely more enjoyable game and, as proved by published records, a more successful game, should be an inducement in this materialistic world.

Let us get away from the quacks who expose their quackery by altering their system, every three months, and let us decide to play the greatest card game ever invented by relying solely on legitimate inferences conveyed in a natural way to partner and opponents, and no questions asked.

Under these conditions a player can bluff to his heart's content.

The proper reply to any inquiry from opponents is: "We have no code and no artificiality, and we have given no undertaking to each other or to you. Using my common sense, I read my partner's bid in the same way as you will read it, if you use yours. If he is bluffing, that is his look-out, and mine, and yours."

Sweeney Beaten In Record Time

HOLLAND'S FOUR SUCCESSES
London, Yesterday.

The Amateur Athletic Championships, constituting the British Olympic trials, were continued at the White City Stadium to-day, before a crowd of 45,000, despite the fact that the track was still in a very heavy condition.

The first event on the programme, the Discus Throw, was won by Prendergast with a throw of 141 ft. 5 ins. Reavell Carter was second, only a quarter of an inch behind! The third place was filled by Bell with a throw of 134 ft. 7 ins. Prendergast and Carter both beat the English Native record of 140 feet.

IRISHMAN BEATEN
Drake won the Throwing the Hammer event with 151 ft. 9 ins., Smith being second with 142 ft. 3 1/2 ins., the third place going to Monallen (Ireland) whose distance was 141 ft. 6 1/2 ins.

Pride of place in the Javelin Throw went to Vanderpoll (Holland) who won the event with a throw of 189 ft. 2 ins. Wilson was second with 180 ft. 4 1/2 ins., while Turner was third with 159 ft. 9 1/2 ins.

A very good race was seen in the half mile, which fell to Powell, who covered the distance in 1 min. 54.7 secs. He was a yard in front of Handley, who only managed to oust Kucharski (Poland) from second place by half a yard.

WEBSTER'S SUCCESS
Holland carried off the Putting the Weight event when Debruyne registered 46 ft. 2 1/2 ins. Howland gained second place with 45 ft. and Carver was third, his effort being 41 ft. 7 ins.

Britain, however, won the Pole Vault, Webster setting up a new English Native record with a leap of 12 ft. 9 ins. Woodhouse of Australia was second clearing 12 ft. 6 ins. and Leach was third with 11 ft. 9 ins.

Another English record was equalled in the 100 Yards when Osendrap (Holland), breasted the tape in 9.8 secs. with Sweeney second and Holmes third. The Dutchman won by a matter of inches only, while half a yard separated the second and third competitors.—Reuter.

FINLAY BREAKS RECORD

Yet another English record went by the board when in the three miles Ward clocked 14 mins. 15.8 secs. to beat Close by 25 yards, while Reeve was 10 yards behind the second man.

Traynor cleared 23 ft. 2 ins. to win the long jump from Breach, whose effort was registered as 22 ft. 8 1/2 ins., the third place going to Duncan at 22 ft. 7 ins.

The 120 Yards Hurdles resulted in a win for D. O. Finlay by three yards in 14.6 secs., which represents another new English record. The second and third places were filled by Thornton and Pilbrow respectively.

Sweeney, who came second to Osendrap in the 100 Yards, made no mistake in the 220 Yards, which he won in 21.9 secs. He was 1 1/2 yards in front of Holmes, who beat Van Beveren (Holland) by about two feet for second place.

One of the finest struggles in the meeting was seen when Wooderson clocked 4 mins. 15 secs. for the mile to beat Jack Lovelock by one yard. Graham, who finished third, was rather out of the picture, being 10 yards behind Lovelock.

MADARIAGA RESIGNS PRESS ATTACKS CAUSE BIG LOSS AT GENEVA

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Madrid, Yesterday.—The Spanish delegate to the League of Nations, Senor de Madariaga, announced his resignation yesterday. The resignation, according to a statement issued by Senor de Madariaga, is due to the severe attacks made by the popular press organs on himself.

QUARTER-MILE HURDLES
The quarter mile hurdle race provided the spectators with another big thrill, Sheffield, Watson (Australia) and Brown running together for the whole distance, the race finally ending in the order mentioned above. Sheffield's time was 55.6 secs., Watson being only a yard behind the winner, while Brown was half a yard behind the Australian.

First place in the High Jump went to Australia, Metcalfe clearing 6 ft. 1 in., with Brasser (Holland), who jumped 6 feet, taking second place. West was third with a jump of 5 ft. 10 ins.

Evenson, Ginty and Wylie finished in the order named in the two miles steeplechase, the winner's time being 10 mins. 24 secs. He was three yards in front of Ginty, who was 20 yards ahead of Wylie. The splendid time of 46.0 secs. was returned by A.G.K. Brown for the quarter mile, Brown finishing five yards ahead of Rampling and Roberts, a matter of inches separating the latter two.

ANOTHER DUTCH SUCCESS
Walker won the Decathlon with a total of 5,201 points, Cotter being second with 5,129, and Burgoess third with 4,428.

The marathon race resulted in win for McLeod-Robertson, whose time was 2 hrs. 35 mins. 2 4/10 secs., and who was six yards in front of Harper, the latter beating O'Sullivan easily for second place.

The day's sport was brought to a conclusion by the quarter mile relay race, which was won by the Dussel Voeters Club, Holland, in 48 secs.—Reuter.

The press asserted that Senor de Madariaga had prepared a memorandum containing proposals for the reform of the League of Nations, while Senor de Madariaga maintains that the document in question is merely the protocol of a conversation that had taken place between the delegates of several neutral Powers, and with the drafting of which he had been charged.

When the Foreign Minister, Senor Barcia, declared, on the publication of the note, that he had not been informed of the contents of the document, which merely reflected Senor de Madariaga's private opinion and by no means represented the official Spanish viewpoint, this brought forth a reply from Senor de Madariaga that he had assumed responsibility for the note merely in order to give the Spanish Government greater freedom of action.

The statement issued by Senor de Madariaga announcing his resignation concludes by expressing "unshakable confidence in the League of Nations, which alone can save the world from an unprecedented catastrophe."—Trans-Ocean Service.

CORPS INFANTRY WIN TITLE

VOLUNTEERS' AQUATIC CARNIVAL

DA ROZA BROTHERS IN LIMELIGHT

THRILLING sport was witnessed by a large gathering of spectators last night at the Victoria Recreation Club, when the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps' annual swimming sports were held, the Corps Infantry carrying off the Inter-Unit Swimming Cup by securing 15 points as against 10 by the Static Machine Guns, with whom they shared the spoils last year.

The standard of swimming was, on the whole, excellent, while the finishes in most of the races, particularly in the relays, were very close. Much disappointment was felt at the cancellation of the Nursing Detachment's 50 Yards Free Style Championship owing to lack of entries.

Among those present were H.E. the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, and Lady Caldecott, attended by Captain W. J. R. Cragg, A.D.C., H.E. the G.O.C., Major-General A. W. Bartholomew and Mrs. Bartholomew and party, attended by Lieut. J. P. Howorth, R.A., A.D.C., Lieut-Col. H. B. L. Dowling, Commandant of the H.K.V.D.C., and Major E. J. R. Mitchell, President of the Swimming Committee.

The programme opened with one of the most thrilling relays seen in the bath, when the Static Machine Guns beat the Corps Infantry by a touch after Gittins and Anslow had given them a substantial lead.

The Infantry have the da Roza brothers to thank for the splendid resistance offered.

Owing to many scratchings, there were two heats for the Ladies' Invitation 50 Yards handicap, which was won by Miss I. Thirwell.

The High Diving was not exactly a walk-over for the Corps Infantry and they had to be at their very best to beat the Coastal Defence by a very slight margin for first place. Milln was the best individual performer, although Marques ran him a close second.

AMUSING INTERLUDE
The pillow fight gave the spectators an amusing 15 minutes sport, R. Andrews winning easily from J. Milln in the final.

E. M. Marques gave the Infantry their win in the Three Styles Relay when he caught up and beat S. V. Gittins after Norman Lee had given the Statics a substantial lead. A. A. da Roza and E. B. da Roza again came into the picture with good finishing bursts.

The last event on the programme was the final of the Inter-Unit water-polo championship, which was won by the Corps Infantry in a fast and thrilling game against the Static Machine Guns, who went down fighting gamely by 4 goals to 1.

REMEDIOS SCORES FOUR
J. D. Remedios was the star of the game, scoring all four of the winners' goals as the result of solo efforts, while H. Owen Hughes, in goal, and S. V. Gittins, in the attack, shone for the losers.

THE RESULTS
Results were:
300 Yards Team Race. (Teams of 3—each man to swim 50 Yards).
1. Static Machine Guns (3)—S. V. Gittins, E. Anslow, R. Sommers, C. Sloan, N. Lee, H. Wing Lee.

BANK OF CANTON TO RE-OPEN?

PETITION TO BE HEARD

Providing the scheme with the creditors, for the re-opening of the bank, is approved by the Court when the petition comes up for hearing on Friday next, it is understood that the Bank of Canton, which suspended payment early in September 1935, will be opening its doors for business again in the near future.

The above information was obtained by the Sunday Herald in an interview with Messrs. Johnson Stokes and Master, solicitors for the Bank.

WEATHER REPORT

The depression still remains in the Pacific to the east of Japan. A second depression covers North China and the Yellow Sea. South-west winds, moderate; fair generally, local showers probable, was the forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last evening.
